Students elect first female

A girl studentbody president? at Box Elder High School? It was true. Cindy Hyde served as that president and served BE well. "I didn't want to be a 'womens liber'," commented Cindy, "but I wanted to spend my senior year working to represent the studentbody of Box Elder."

She and the other officers, vice-president Robert Lemon, 2nd vice-president Staci Fullmer, and secretary Jodi Thurston, began several new activities. Homecoming week started a new tradition with the 'Mr. Cool' contest and a powderpuff football game. A volleyball tourney consisting of reams from every club was held in November. Dinner was served to all the new students so they could get acquainted with BE.

One student stated, "The Studentbody Officers have changed the spirit of Box Elder. They tried to get the students involved and excited to be a Box Elder Bee."

Changes made

It has been said that progress is impossible with out change and those who cannot change their minds, cannot change anything.

Change was definately a part of student government during the 1983-84 school year.

Rotating round the theme "Working Togerher For Berter Tomorow, student government began planning school activities early in the summer. The goal was to keep old traditions alive, bur to change them in small ways.

Starring with Hello Week, a new student social was held. And during Homecoming Week, the first ever bonfire 'with music' was held.

Mr. Steve Leggett commented, "I really enjoy being the advisor of student government. The kids all work hard, I never have to get after them to do their jobs."

"We have alot of fun, but when it comes down to doing work, everyone gets together and we all work hard," said one student government member.

Changes from the opening of the low life lounge to students actually helping with lunch parrol helped progress become a realty.

Hitting the town

Students at B. E. had varied interests when it came to having a good time. The younger crowd enjoyed slumber parties or "hitting the Cinemas", while the older students could be found heading towards Ogden to shop or see a movie.

The spending of money was a favorite of all students. Squandering it on movies and junk food was a common thing. Kathryn Armstrong spoke for most girls when she said, "I could probably spend millions just buying clothes!"

Spending money requires earning money. This was often done by working at McDonalds, babysitting, or just plain begging money from those ever vulnerable parents.

Another part of student life at B. E. was the eagerly awaited lunch period. Those lucky enough to have a car rushed to one of the local fast food spots, while the unlucky remainder braved the deep, dark unknowns of the cafeteria cuisine.

Student life varied at B.E. but whatever our students did, one thing was certain—they definitely had a good time!

Students Visit

Despite limitations imposed by the Box Elder County School Board regulating the number of foriegn exchange students, Box Elder was favored to receive two foriegn exchange students, Timo Hirvola from Finland, and Oliver Von Rotz from Switzerland.

Even though they're both from diffrent countries, they found many things similiar. For one thing they both found they could understand the language, but had trouble speaking it at first. Another thing in common is that Box Elder is a lot bigger than either of their schools, and the classes are also a lot easier.

Upon arriving in the United States, Oliver quickly immersed himself in Box Elders mainstream by joining pep band, debate, swim team, and being voted Homecoming King for 1983.

Timo is in the Spanish club and Future Farmers of America. He also likes video games, track and American television, but he can not see the need of all those "stupid commercials."

With the showing of the movie Flash Dance came a new and bizarre fad. The Flash Dance look! Swear shirts with no neckband hanging loosely off shoulders with leotard underneath, were the rage of the summer and fall. Some were so caught up in the style, they braved the blizzards of December to follow the fashion trend set by Jennifer Beals.

Those ever popular mini skirts once again made their appearance in the halls of BE, while with the coming of a more liberal minded principal came the ever popular walking shorts.

The preppy look was still a part of BE fashion with those invicible 501 shrink to fits, polo shirts, button down oxfords and boat shoes.

Converse All Star high top shoes hit the fashion minded guys of Box Elder. Their bright and unusual colors added a little class (?) to the school. Also, the combat look with its drab olive green hues brought a brand new look to BE.

With the various looks worn by the students, the fads and fashions added to that unique BE style.

Band adds class.

Football games and basketball games proved to be very exciting for B.E. fans but part of this was due to the pep band. The band provided music that was popular and had a beat that people could get into. Many times during halftime you could look around and see people tapping their feet and singing the words to the melodies.

Besides playing for their own studentbody, the band also had their annual competition. This year it was held in Boise, Idaho. "We always have really fun when we compere. You get to have a good time with your friends too." stated Kim Thorne. "It gets better every year," added Amber Johnson.

Graduation always had a touch of class with the band's music there too. Mr. Earl Swenson conducted the band to bigger and better things.

Bee reflects image of school

"Organized chaos" said BEE staffer, Jenny Jones. And that's what it was. Layout people screaming at writers, writers screaming at layout people for word counts, and everybody screaming at the photographers, who even though unjustly abused by everybody, still managed to take credible photos.

Through all this chaos, a diminutive figure, Advisor Brent Jeppesen, who was a little nervous at deadlines and for that matter was a little nervous all the time, led the BEE staff in turning out a bi-monthly newspaper. It was packed with information on sports, dances, people, and editorials on everything from censorship of the press, to the latest movies playing at Walkers'.

"It's a blast!" said Holly Sparks. "Even though Mr. Jeppesen's always worried about not being able to make the deadline, somehow, some way, we do it."

And even though, after all the papers were issued, there were a lot scattered in the hall, Box Elder still appreciated the BEE staff.

Moves planned

"Danger. 100,000 ohms." That sign greeted B'onics club members as they entered advisor Mirl Hackings room. What's an ohm you ask. Join B'onics and find out.

"The purpose of B'onics is to unite a group of young men and women who share their the interest in radios, television, computers, and in general, electronics.

"I really like B'onics" commented Mike Greer, a three year veteran, and 3rd vice-President, because B'onics gives me the chance I normally wouldn't get to get my hands on T.V.'s, radios and computers.

B'onics, beside working on broken radios and T.V.'s, also delved into the fascinating world of computers, which more and more people are starting to get involved in.

Group studies

Playing games and solving problems doesn't sound like a good combination for a club but when you think about it the Math Chess club was one of the most challenging and mindracking clubs in the school. The Math/ Chess club was led by President Bill Vicars who also led it last year.

"Chess is a historic game which was played by kings and high royalty about 200 years ago. It was invented by the upper class for the upper class." stated Mr. Alan Schow who has advised the club for a number of years.

During lunch and on Thursdays after school many could be found in room 256 playing chess. "We hold our meetings on Thursdays but you can usually find someone playing almost anytime." Mr. Schow jokingly said.

The goal for the year was to attend the Utah State Chess Openers in March. "This year we want to shoot the highest and try to take it all. We have the potential to win State and I think we can do it!" Mr. Schow replied.

Making Images

With creative minds, hours of hard work, and alot of patience, the Boomerang Staff is formed.

Led by co-editors Jan Jones and Laura Kennedy and advisor Chris Larson, the work began. The 23 staff members made up of copy writers, page lay-out designers, and photographers put their amazing creativeness into action and began planning the yearbook. A theme was picked and from there the book was planned.

Thursday nights meant burning the midnight oil for staff members. Hours of extra time were spent in that beloved room 207. However, hard work was not the only aspect of being a Boomerang Staff Member. Staff members found new friends and discovered new and exciting ways to have fun.

"I love being on the staff!" commented Kathy Kallmeyer, "I've learned how to be more patient plus I get the privilege of working with Chris."

Gives chances

"It gives people a chance to experiment and make movies which they may have never had a chance to do," responded Pat Collins when asked about Cinematography.

It was the first year for the club and it already has 17 members who are led by President Pat Collins and Vice-President Peri Cope. The club held meetings twice a month where they discussed films in the process of being made, they also discussed plans for films to be made in the future.

When asked what he liked about the club Pat Collins responded, "It gives a person the opportunity to take an idea he has and put it on film. He also added, "Everyone in the club wants to learn and does their best.

Practice made perfect

"It's a lot of work, but it is also a lot of fun," responded David Marble when asked about the Rodeo Club. The club not only practice just to improve their skills, but for the competitions and state which were held in various parts of Utah.

The club also held meetings twice a month. The meetings were usually held at one of the officer's houses. The officers, who consisted of Mirch McEwan president, David Marble vice-president, and Clint Tremmeling as secretary. The officers felt it was a good year and would do it again.

The club this year consisted of about 21 people, most of which participated in competitions and some of which got to compete at state.

The advisor for the club quoted, "It's a great opportunity for some keds that would not have the chance to participate in this type of thing otherwise."

All the members agreed that Rodeo Club is well worth the time and effort.

Singers excell

With a new teacher this year for Chorale, Carolyn Olsen, the president, feels that Mr. Colletti is fantastic, and that he has helped their performing. "We sound pretty good," Carolyn said, "But sometimes . . . I won't mention." Carolyn is planning on going to a singing college and studying to be a teacher herself.

Mr. Colletti said that Carolyn is a great president and is glad to have her in the group. He felt that it is not only the best choir he has taught, but it is also the largest choir in the region. They also had some USU professional directors help them and it improved the group incredibly.

With their new choir outfits, they have performed at many places such as Ogden City Mall, singing the National Anthem at basketball games which is new this year, and many others. Singing wasn't all they did; they had parties and had lots of good times together.

"They practiced hard and deserve the best," proudly commented Mr. Colletti.

Spirit shines

At the beginning of the year, it seemed the cheerleaders had their work cut out for them. They were responsible for raising Box Elder's spirit up to where the other schools in Region One would sit up and take notice.

The 1983-84 cheerleading squad did just that! They started the year with a pep assembly and kept them coming all year long. They attended every game, rain or shine, and made the crowd glad they had come. They and the other school clubs decorated the halls, lockers and even the buses that carried the teams to away games.

"Being a cheerleader is lots of hard work, but it sure is fun!" Ressa Leishman stated. The other cheerleaders, Dominique Dietz, Angie Sheridan, Tami Campbell, Robin Findlay, Lisa Hale, ChaRee Wright, and Joan Nielsen all agreed.

Patti Jones, new to Box Elder, served as advisor to the cheerleaders. She and the squad made a winning team and represented BE spirit well.

Spirit promoted

Working hard and having fun described the 1983-84 Box Elder High School Colorguard.

The main purpose for the organization was to present the flag at football and basketball games, to promote spirit, and most importantly give their support to the team. "We really want to let the team know that we're behind them. We're proud of purple," stated Laura Kennedy.

When trying out for Colorguard, the judges main interests were how well you knew what you were doing, marching, twirling the flag, and how fast you could pick up the routines. Monthly fees pf $3.00 and the uniforms were the only costs.

The colorguard advisor, Diane Quayle who was a former member of Colorquard, helped them with their marches and gave them alot of support. Mr. Earl Swenson conducted the band.

"Colorguard is so much fun. It has given me alot of memories I'll never forget," Linda Larsen stated.

Let's Dance

Look our Broadway, here they come!-choreographying, rehearsing and perfecting the dances that take weeks to learn. But the members of Dance Club were more than willing to work. Why would anyone want to get up at 5:30 am and be at school by 6:30 every day? Simply because, according to President Jenny Jones, "We love to dance!"

Practice, practice, practice. Time spent before, during and after school took up most of the time and energy of the fourteen members of Dance Club. Besides the annual Spring Concert which they begin choreographing in the fall, there is an average of fifteen dances to learn each year. Dances that the studentbody watched at the various assemblies.

Led by advisor Raedene Corrigen, the dancers practice various routines in addition to the half hour of aerobics after school. Said Jenny Jones of Mrs. Corrigen, "She's and interesting person as well as an excellent dancer. I'm proud to be working so closely with her."

7. Practice makes perfect so members of Dance Club practiced many hours.

Students debate

The question is often asked; what exactly does the debate team do? The answer is: debate is a team event where the team is given a subject and all year to research it. They they compete in debates using this subject. However, debate has been losing its popularity in Utah so for the first year, Box Elder combined debate and forensics.

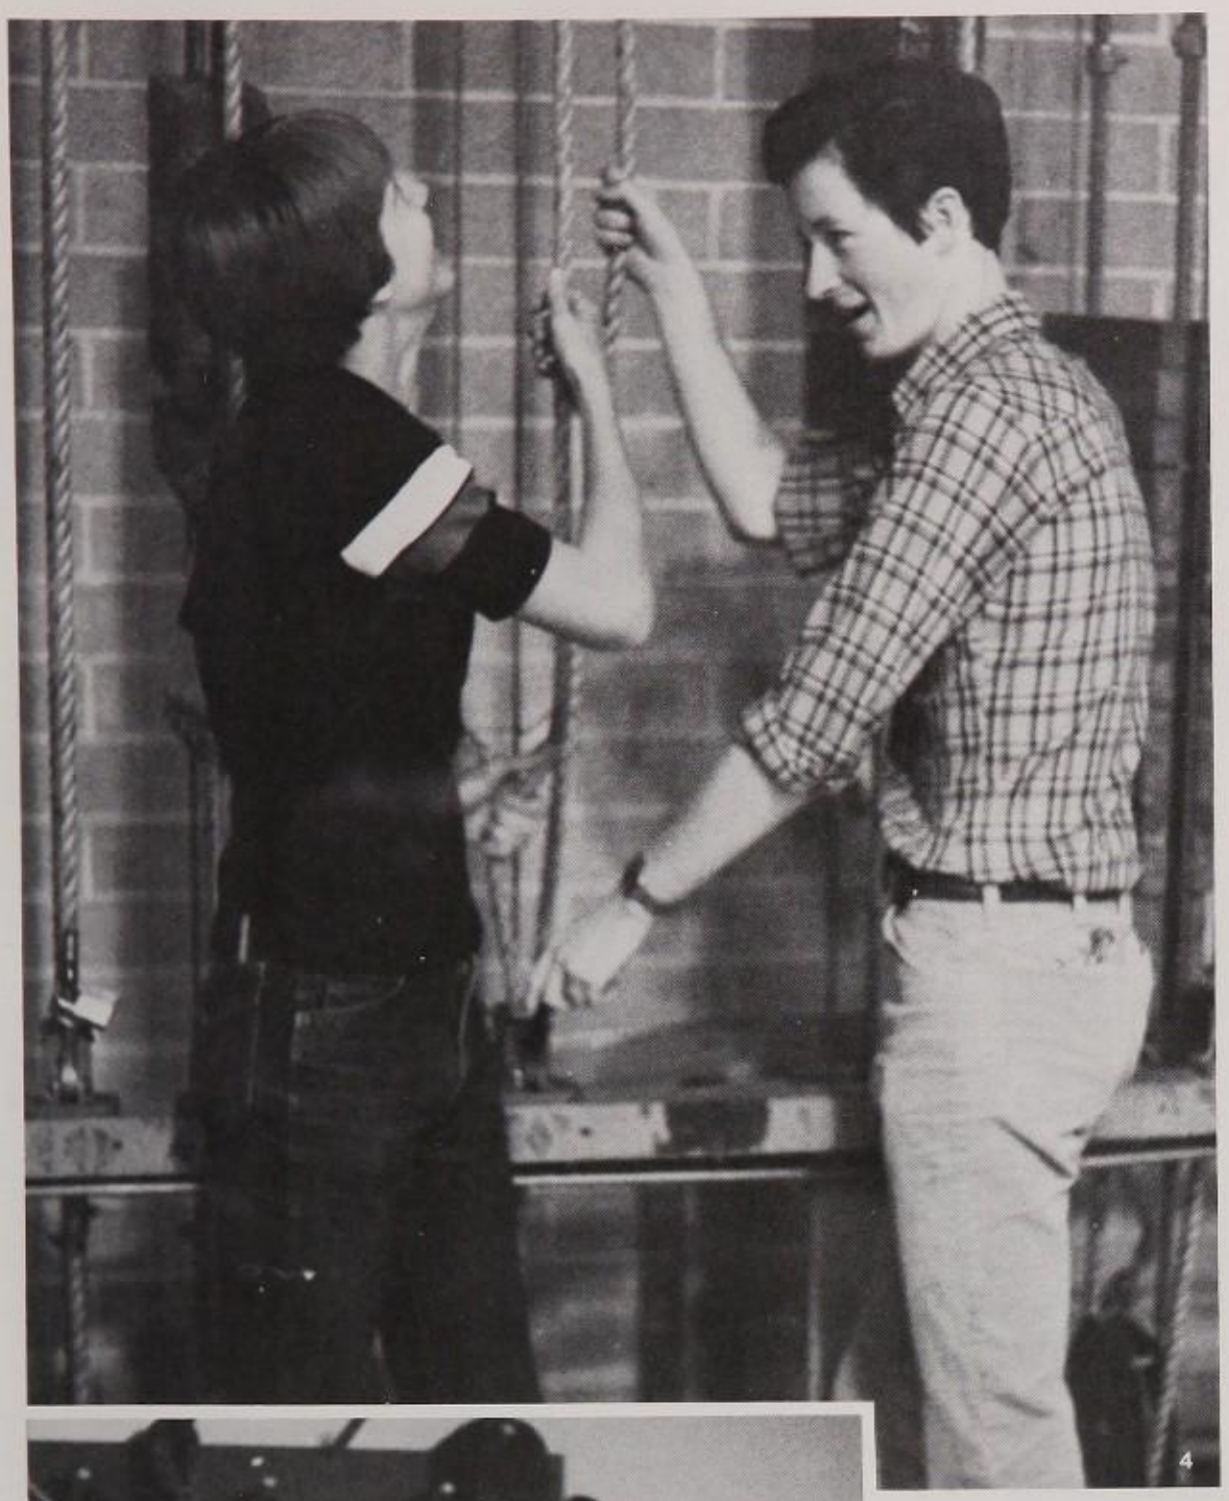
Leading the club were president Norma Barnes, vice-president Rae Anne Robinson, secretary, Shelly Stuart, and historian/treasurer Mary Honeck. Mr. Joe Barzel was the club advisor.

Norma Barnes felt that the club had a lot of strength and a lot of talent. This proved to be true in the eight competitions held during the year.

"Being in debate is a lot of work but it's well worth it," commented Eric Bertelsen. And Pat Collins added, "It's hard, challenging, and a riot."

Despite the changes during the year, the purpose of debate remained the same, to reach speaking skills and build confidence in students.

1. Debate's generally a serious subject but nor always
2. Under the direction of Joe Barzel, the Debate Club excelled in all the fields of forensics.
3. Members of Debate spent many hours in the library researching their topics.



Crew engineers

Have you ever wondered, during an assembly, who opens and closes the curtains or who keeps the right color of lights on at the right time? Who gets all the sets where they're supposed to be? Who plays the music?

If you have, the answer is the stage crew. Though fairly little attention is paid to the members of of the crew, Cal Christensen, Shawn Moyes, Angie Smith, Mark Misseldine, and Stacy Richan, they came without fail to assembly practices, etc . . .

Even though not an official faculty member, the advisor, Robert Breitenbeker, was also at school faithfully every morning.

"I enjoy working with the stage crew," siad Mr. Breitenbeker. "People probably think that it would be a drag to have this job, but despite the hard work & late hours, it is worth it."

Besides learning alot, there were many advantages of being a stage crew member. For instance, one member stated, "We get paid!!!"

4. It takes a lot of pulling together to put on a show.
5. Mr. Robert Breitenbeker engineers the stage crew.
6. Jon Conley, Angie Smith, Mark Miseldine, Robert Breitenbeker, Shawn Moyes.

Clubs combine

German, Spanish, and French dominared the Foreign Language departrment this year. In fact they were the only foreign languages raught, with the exceprion of English.

Taking a foreign language was very profitable. There were games, tests, vocabulary, culture, and history lessons pertaining ro the countries where the language is spoken.

A lot of people got a thrill our of being able ro say things that nobody could understand.

The clubs were very busy this year. Many activities were held, including video and pizza parties, roller skaring, and the Language Fair ar Brigham Young University. But rhe high point of the year was the joint Christmas parry for the rhree clubs ar the community center.

When asked how she felt about foreign languages, Wenny Laheru srared, "They make you learn so you can go ro another country and you can really have a good experience. You also just can know that you know another language orher than English."

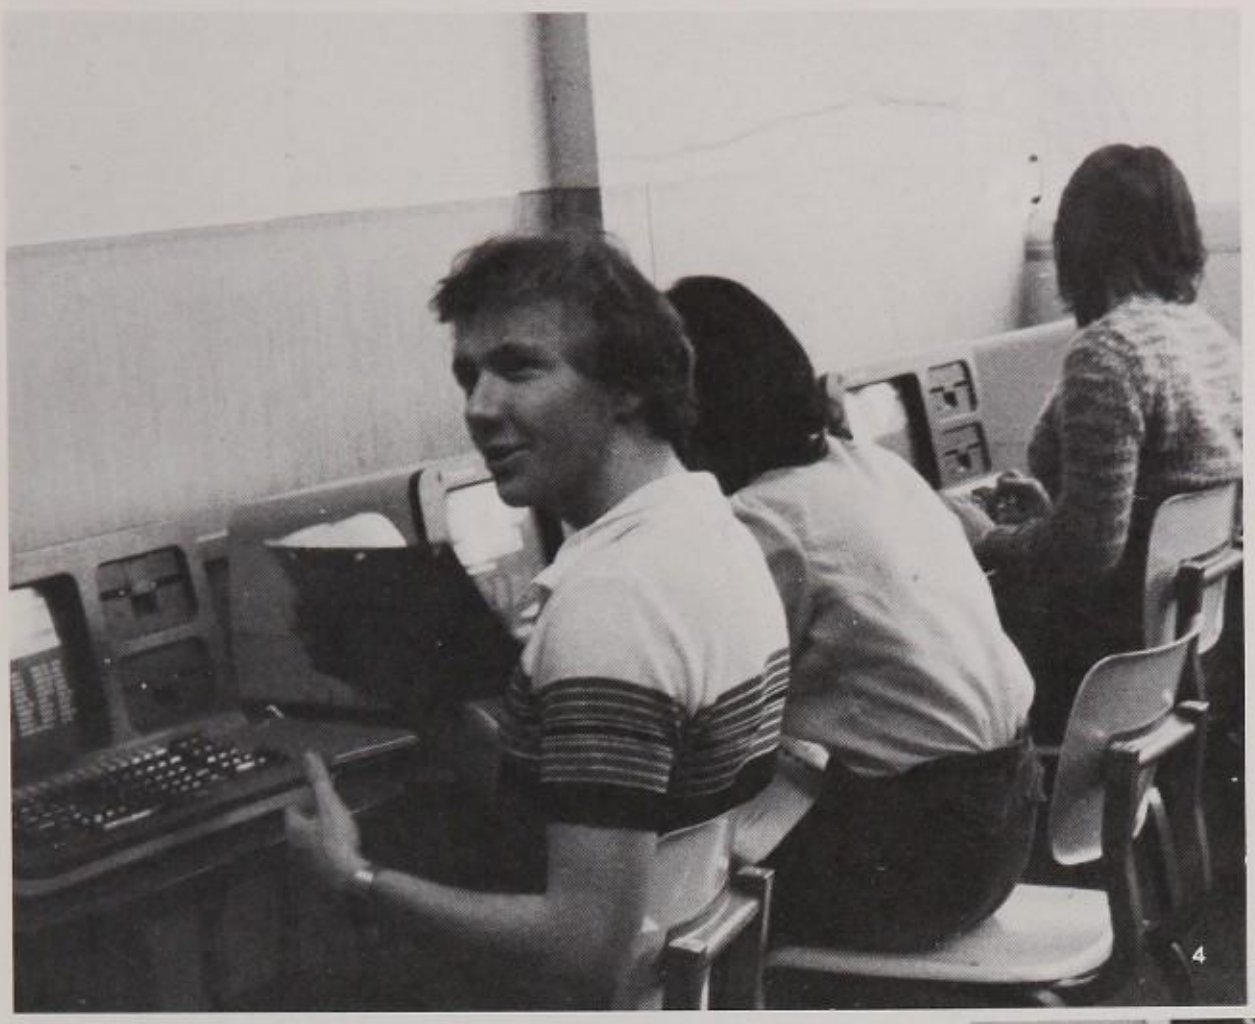
Business booming

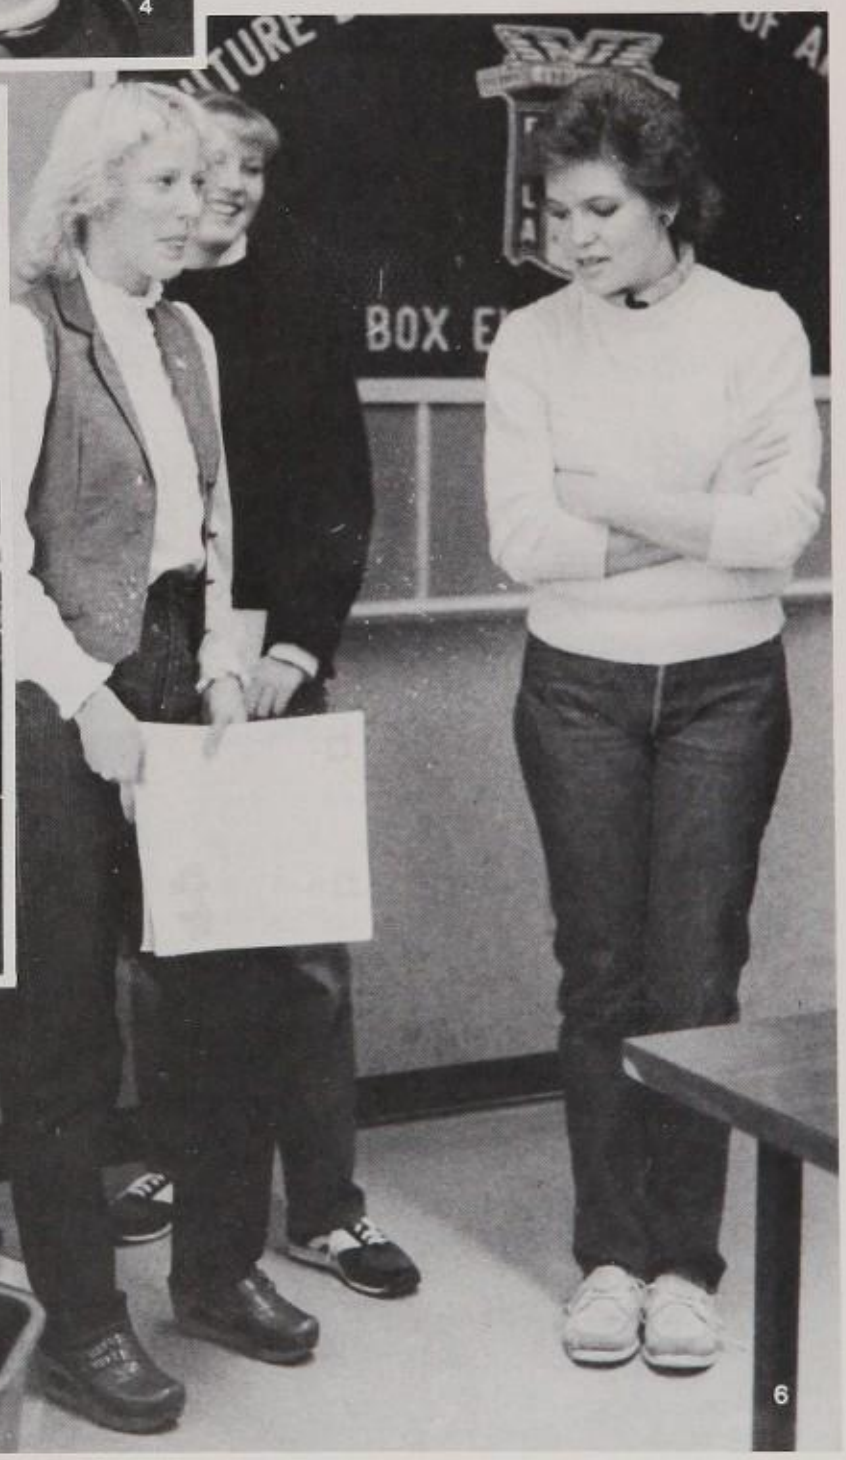
Because they didn't have any officers to carry over from last year, FBLA took a while to get started. When they did get started, they went full speed ahead.

Trying to have an activity once a month, a variety of activities were planned. Starting with the candlelight ceremony, they introduced the new members into the club. Having guest speakers come from different businesses taught them about the business world.

Since FBLA'S purpose was to learn about the economic system, they had a Free Enterprise Dinner. This entailed getting into groups and fixing a dinner the way a certain government would allow them to, including how much they could spend, how much they could eat, and what kinds of food they could eat. Cami Daines commented, "It was interesting to see how much difference a system could have on meals."

Officers for the year were: Todd Nichols, President; Tina Jones, Vice President; Miriam Holman, Secretary; Tammy Enright, Treasurer; Jenny Reid, Historian; Bill Vicars, Parlimentarian; and Heidi Moffet, Reporter.





1. Attempting to use his overpowering authority, FBLA President, Todd Nichols wonders why his fellow officers aren't gazing at him in awe.
2. Besides teaching classes such as shorthand and word processing, Mrs. Marilyn Bennion is also the advisor of Future Business Leaders of America.
3. Serving as officers during the year are Jenny Reid, Heidi Moffett, Tammy Enright, Tina Jones, Todd Nichols, Bill Vicars, and Miriam Holman.
4. Attempting to be devoted to FBLA, Bill Vicars takes another business class.
5. Pretending to be a member of FBLA, Robbie Bingham devotes his 7th hour T.A. class to increasing his computer skills.
6. Sticking her tongue out, Tammy Enright shows her innermost feeling about school.

Club's growing

If you had a competitive spirit and liked to work hard then you might have enjoyed Future Farmers of America. But you must also like people. In the 1983-84 school year, FFA had about 175 people to make it one, if not the largest, club at Box Elder High School.

One of the activities they were involved in was competition at the State Fair. This year was different than others because four members took pigs to be judged. Usually only fruits and vegetables were taken. Some lucky members got to go to Kansas City to attend the annual National FFA Convention.

Along with FHA, FFA hosted the annual Harvest Ball. Other activities included selling hamburgers at football games, essay contests sponsered by the Farm Journal, their own hamburger fry, and judging horses, cows, chickens, and carcuses.

Being in FFA has a lot of advantages. Secretary Cheryl Jensen said, "You have a free hour and you get to work on your projects. It separates you from the city kids."

Advisors Sam Jones and Dee Forrest along with president Kelly Norman, V.P. Brian Billings, Secretary Cheryl Jensen, Tresurer Brad Wells, Sentrial Jared Holmgren, and Recorder Kirt Reese led the club to a very successful year.

1. Officers wait to gain everybodys' attention.
2. FFA members really do have some pride in their country as they show at their meetings.
3. After meetings are over, most FFA members rush to find the refreshments.
4. Wondering how many cookbooks they really need, Elsie Iverson and Pam Welch count them out.
5. Deana Jenks, Elsie Iverson, Holly Osmond, Pam Welch, Helen Tashiro, and Jeanine Dickey.
6. Doing dishes after parties is one thing Deana Jenks and Jeanine Dickey have to do.
7. Showing Holly Osmond she has the wrong measuring cup. Helen Tashior gets the right one.

They're cookin'

The members of Future Homemakers of America didn't, as most kids think, cook and sew constantly. They had many activities planned with Future Farmers of America. Several examples were: Planning and participating in the Harvest Ball, A Halloween Party, and a winter tubing party at Mantua Hill. Other activities ranged from learning how to dip chocolates at Christmastime to attending the annual FHA State Convention at BYU in the spring. The club purposes were not only to learn many homemaking skills, but to provide opportunities for decision making later in life and for assuming responsibility. It also provided a chance for scholarships for those wishing to go on in that field. "Being in FHA can help you out alot when you're on your own. It can also give you a chance for a scholarship," commented Deanna Jenks who was publicity chairman of the club.

Many new ideas were thought of this year in the club, which attracted thirty-five people to join. It was better to join the organization early when the fee was $7.50. Latecomers were required to pay $8.00. Also, you had the optional choice of buying a T-shirt with the club logo on the front.

Mrs. Jensen and President Helen Tashiro planned new things which made it a very exciting year.

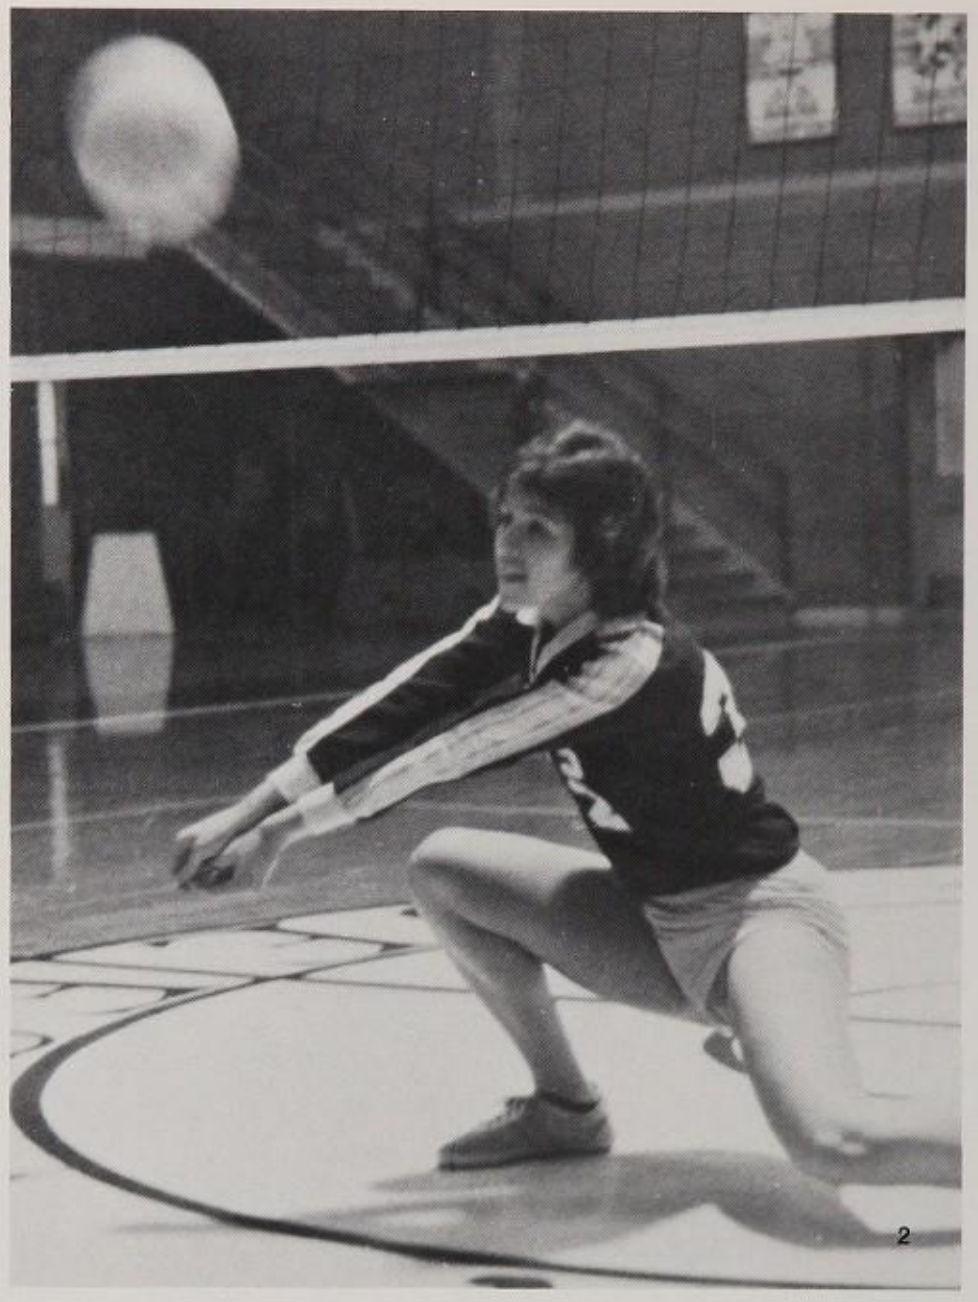
1. The many members of GAA exemplify the variety of activities offered of the club.
2. Acting as Vice President of GAA, Stacy Wheeler is involved in many sports.
3. Val Thompson points her way to the top, as does GAA.



Slogan guides

"What I am to be, I am now becoming." With that phrase in mind, the Girls Acrivities Association kicked off their 1983-84 year with an opening social, which was very successful.

G.A.A, even though it was one of the largest clubs in the school, had one thing diffrent from other clubs of it's size: active participation. "They've been very supportive of the activities" said Lisa LeDuc, a four year veteran of G.A.A., and this years' club president.

Besides being a social organization, G.A.A. was also dedicated to raising funds for the many sports at Box Elder, both boys and girls. "Although most people think you have to be a great athelete to join G.A.A., you don't. You don't even have to be an athelete. G.A.A. is a social organization" said faculty advisor, Emily Call.

Group is great

"It's a great club," responded Cody Judy when asked about the Lettermens Club. The officers consisted of President Troy Jensen, Vice President Cody Judy, Sargent-at-Arms, Tom Olsen, and secretary Mike Harris.

The club's biggest activity was the Beard Growing Contest. They also had parties which consisted of video movies, and a lot of food.

The club also held meetings twice a month in which they discussed upcoming activities. The majority of the people felt like the year was a real success.

The club was made up of lettermen from the football, basketball, baseball, and tennis teams. Though there were a lot of people in the club, it did not matter because they were all active members.

The clubs advisor was Coach Madeo who stated, "It is a good club and there are a lot of good guys in it."

"Coach Madeo is a great guy and a super advisor," commented one of the members.

Madrigals perform under new director

The 1983-84 Madrigals were under direction of Mr. Jeff Coletti, one of the new teachers at Box Elder this year. Mr. Coletti comments "Box Elder is fantastic but, its hard coming after Mr. Boman."

One of the many members, Steve Christenson, explained, "We love Mr. Coletti, its a new life," and also said he felt that the Madrigals worked hard and got along very well, and seemed to enjoy what they were doing.

They preformed at many places such as malls, churches, schools, colleges, and many more as the year progressed. They worked with some professional musicans and felt it helped them in their performing. Nexr year they're aiming on going to Washington D.C. to perform. Out of the 22 members Mr. Coletti said "I think every member of the Madrigals is good enough to all ger a musical scholarship any where they wanr."

Students successful

"The superior intelligence of our minds controlled our bodies." Allan Earl jokingly gave the reason why N.S.H. won the club volleyball championship.

National Honor Society was for the superior intelligent people though, because only the people who achieved a 3.8 GPA were allowed to join the prestigious club. "I was really glad to get in N.H.S. because of the high class people in it," said Janae Peterson.

Contrary to belief, honor students do not spend all their time studying. Many of them were involved in other clubs, had part-time jobs, and as expressed by Sally Page, "I do anything to get away from the pressures of school."

The officers for the year were: Allan Earl, President; Tyler Dunn, Vice President; Shelly Stuart, Secretary; Holly Walker, Treasurer; Dan Canfield, Publicity.

1. Proudly, Sally Page adds her name to the list of members as Tyler Dunn supervises.
2. Officers Shelly Stuart, Tyler Dunn, Dan Canfield and Holly Walker discuss the meeting.
3. President Allan Earl conducts the Candlelight Ceremony which initiated new members into the club.
4. Achieving a 3.8 GPA allowed these students to become members of National Honor Society.

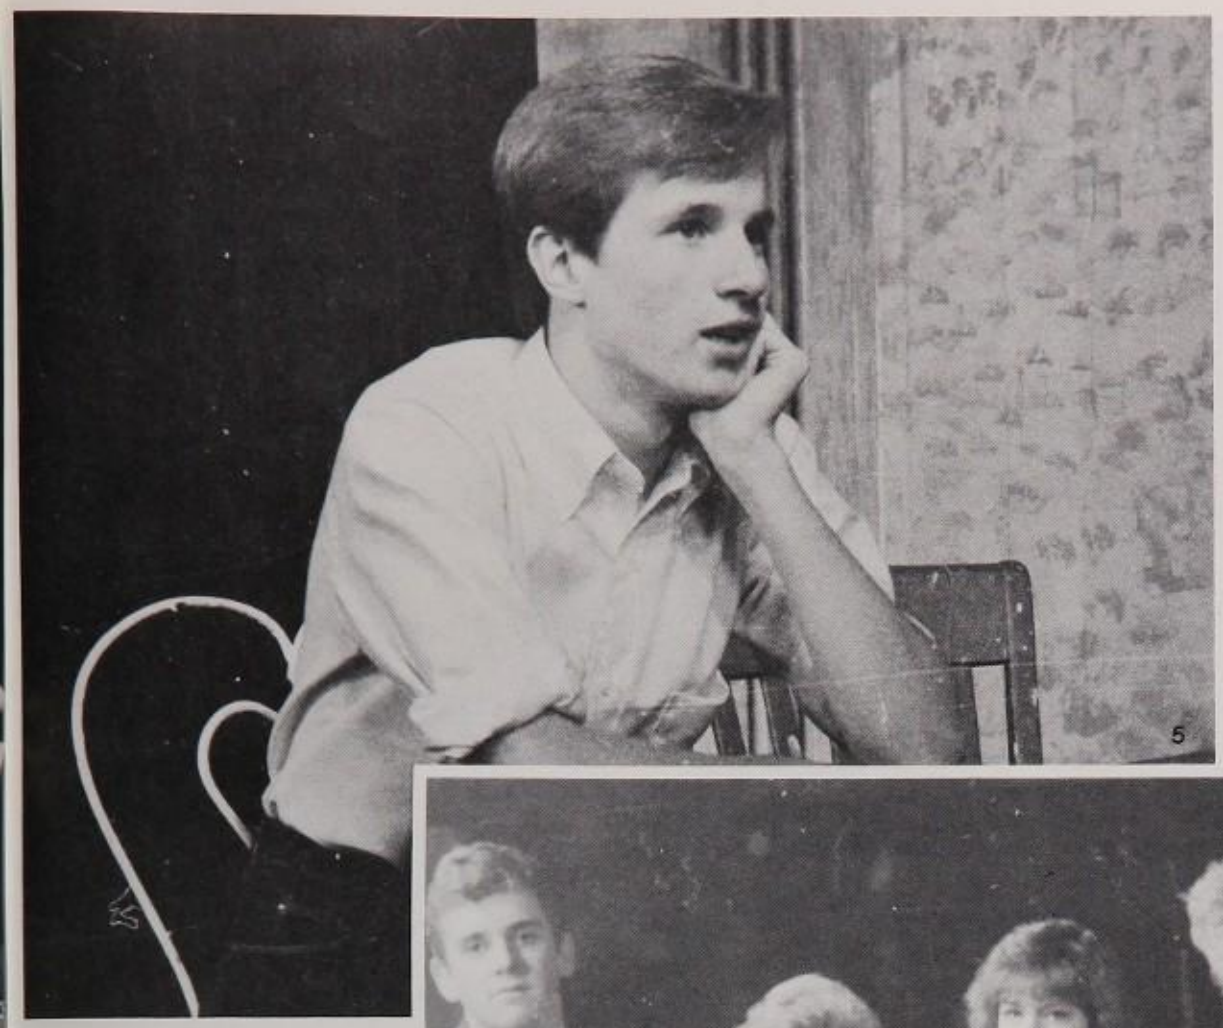
Plays produced

From dramas to comedies, musicals to melodramas; Charly's Aunt to Nellie, the Felon's daughter, Palace produced countless plays and produced them well.

Led by a board of directors consisting of Perri Cope, Pat Collins, Deborah Neutzman and Norma Barnes, the actors and actresses of Palace rose early each morning, traveled to the top floor of First Security Bank, and practised long hours at perfecting their talent. They portrayed the monster in "Frankenstein" to Tevya in "Fiddler on the Roof."

"They're really a great bunch of people," said board member Pat Collins. "They're really good actors, and when the pressure is on, we all pull together and practice." And practice they did, on an average of 10 to 12 hours a week.



1. Members of Palace Playhouse get in their favorite poses as they ride past everyone at the Peach Days Parade.
2. Assuming the character of Dr. Frankenstein, David Thorsen tries to perfect his portrayal.
3. Pouring his heart out to Perri Cope, Matt Opprecht and Perri practice a scene from "Charly's Aunt"(scene).

Rockettes Work Hard

Marching in football and basketball halftimes was just a small part of being a Rockette. There were the initiations, fund-raisers, games, parties, competitions, and don't forget the early morning practices beginning in mid-July.

When asked how she felt about the time being spent in Rockettes, Advisor Linda Watson said, "I feel that it's very worthwhile. We have region and state just like in athletics and we want to represent Box Elder well." She also said that the girls worked hard and they had a lot of potential.

Concerning being a Rockette, Eliza McGaha, Vice President, said, "Like most everything Rockettes has its ups and downs but the ups outweigh the downs by a long shot. It's alot of hard work but when we work real hard it always pays off. We're with each other practically every day and then some, so we become really close, just like sisters."

"I like having Rockettes march in the halftimes at the games because if the game is boring then it helps to look forward to halftime and the Rockettes," said Jeff Shaw, a spectator.

One of the highlights of the year for the Rockettes came early in the year when they did very well at their first competition where they took two second places and the over all trophies.

Spirit shines

They were at every game, bad weather and all. Football, basketball, and baseball games, they were there. A mass of purple jump suits swaying to the music of the pep band and the cheers of the cheerleaders. They were there . . . Pep Club!

This years Pep club consisted of 93 young freshmen and sophomore girls who drove our reams onto victory.

"They're a great bunch of girls" said Pep club Presidenr Lory Larkin, and "We've really had a successful year" she continued.

Also, right there along with the Pep club were the J.V. cheerleaders, who besides cheering on the Varsity Bees, also had the duties of helping the J.V. reams on to victory.

"We've had just a really super year" said head J.V. cheerleader Joni Swenson. "And we've really had fun." she added.

All in all, the Pep club and the J.V. cheer leaders were essential to many Box Elder victories.

Perfect talents

Thespian: (thes' pi n), adj. a tragedian; an actor or actress.

The fifty members of Box Elder's Thespian Club certainly lived up to this definition. "Being a Thespian gives you a super chance to practice your acting plus have tons of fun," commented Deborah Nuetzman, who served as vice-president of the club. Other 1983-84 officers consisted of president Ken Herzog, secretary Becky Yates, historian Donielle Rae, and Peri Cope as parlimentarian.

An annual convention gave all Thespians a goal to shoot for. Because senior Cody Judy served as state Thespian president, the convention was held at Box Elder this year. At this convention, clubs from all the high schools in Utah competed in plays and others events. But whenever teenagers get together there is always fun. The first night a dance was held and the next day two Hollywood stars instructed Thespians in seminars.

Mr. Joseph Barzel led the group, and all the members were grateful for his help.

3. Proud to be a member of Thespians, Kathryn Armstrong hopes to be a professional actress someday.
4. Officers for the year are: Ken Herzog, Peri Cope, Deborah Nuetzman, Becky Yates, Norma Barnes.
5. Advisor Lafond Hall and her staff spend many hours putting the various short stories, poems, and artwork together to make up the annual Hive.
6. Members of the Hive are Jeannette James, Colleen Holmes, Janae Peterson and Advisor Mrs. Hall.
7. Sorting through material for the Hive, members of the staff find some humorous stories.

Work cut out

Although the Hive came out in the spring each year, work started in the winter. With only four members working on the staff, they had their work cut out for them. The staff consisted of Jeannette James, Janae Peterson, Colleen Holmes and Mrs. Hall as the advisor.

Even though they worked on the Hive during 3rd hour, extra time after school was necessary to get everything done, especially when production began. Duties included writing poetry and stories, evaluating the poetry, stories and artwork of other students, then laying out and pasting up the pages.

To decide what went in the Hive they chose the most appealing material, judged what the students would most likely enjoy and tried to represent as many students as possible.

The main purpose of the Hive as Mrs. Hall put it was "To encourage creative effort by showing, in print, what other students are doing."

Working Hard

During second hour, strains of classical music could be heard in the remote areas of Box Elder. The orchestra was hard at work.

The group, composed of 1st and 2nd violins, violas, cellos and basses, labored through school towards the goal of performing in the Christmas, Winter, and Spring concerts.

Something new for the 37 member group this year was combining with the band and choir in the annual Christmas concert. The orchestra not only played some songs alone, but played selections from the Messiah, among other songs, in union with the other groups.

Led by the infamous Uncle Earl Swenson, the group breezed through the year getting better and better through the months. "We have some excellent musicians who have a lot of talent," commented Mr. Swenson. "Even most of our freshmen are pretty good," he concluded.

"Some days orchestra can be really fun, but other days . . . ," said one member Patti McGee. However, orchestra was basically enjoyed by all.

1. Paying close attention for his cue, Freshman Charles Hardy waits for Mr. Swenson to start them up.
2. From the expression on the students' faces, we can assume that orchestra is obviously very demanding.
3. The twenty-three years Mr. Swenson has taught orchestra have produced many serious students of music.
4. With an ear for music, Dan Limb hopes to become a professional like "Sting" of the Police.
5. Maestro Earl Swenson is either getting ready to strike up the music or strike down a rebellious student.

G.M.Y.D.R. surfaces at B.E. with 'illustrious' members

Known to only a select few, a new club surfaced or submerged in the Box Elder underworld. A secret group up until now, not many people knew of the "Gimme Your Dough Robbers."

Led by Troy Braegger, president, Dan Canfield, vice-president, secretary Allyn Ord, field trip officer Randy Rasmussen, liquor control officer Allan Earl, the GMYDR was furtherly protected from official opposition, Rolf (alias Richard) Andrus by Alan Batt, secretary of threats, Brett Adams, secretary of muscle, and Chad Lund, secretary of infiltration control.

To become a member of the GMYDR one had to be approved by the complete agreement of the officers, take the oath, and follow the slogan, "Murder, rob, and steal to get gain."

"It is fun getting together and having a great time with the guys," commented an unknown member.

Throughout the year, the warning was spread—BEWARE OF THE GMYDR!!!!!

5. Charging on to battle, Troy Braegger lifts his weapon to lead him on.

Student Leaders

Every two weeks or so, during the school year, representatives from each second hour class could be found meeting to discuss school problems and formulate ideas for upcoming activities.

"The school is being represented well," commented First Vice-President Robert Lemon, who presides over the group, "they speak freely and bring their classes opinions to Representatives Council."

Rep. Council tried to accomplish alot during the year with the goal of planning new activities and planning them around what their classes wanted. According to one member of Rep. Council, they accomplished alot because they brought activity ideas to the attention of the Studentbody Officers that they didn't know people were interested in.

Gary Thorpe summed up the feelings of most of the representatives when he said, "Our main concern was to get more students involved by planning some really fun things."

Sophomore officers

Presenting . . .

Support Felt

"The best I've ever seen," explained President Matt Harris when asked about the lighting of the "B". The lighting of the "B" was not the only project for sophomores and sophomore officers. They were also in charge of the Christmas and Purple and White dances. They also organized class meetings, class [illegible] and the selling of class rings.

The sophomore officers included President Matt Harris, Vice-President Rachel [illegible], Secretary Taunya Day, and Emily Clark and Chrissy [illegible] as representatives.

"It was a great year and we had a lot of fun," explained Chrissy Nash when asked about the year. "The other officers are always there to help when it's needed, and we all pitch in and get the job done," she added.

Overall, the officers felt it was a great year. They felt it was generally felt that the student body really supported and enjoyed the officers when they needed it. They also gave special thanks to class mom and dad, Mrs. Nielson and Mr. Nelson.

The reason for becoming an officer was evident by the replies of the Freshmen officers. Mindy Montgomery "wanted to get to know more people" and Jason Parker "wanted to know what was going on and wanted to decide what goes on."

What was going on? Mainly the Preference Dance and the Homecoming Bonfire. Mindy had a word of advice to next years' officers, "Next year don't put the wood out early." They learned from experience when some upperclassmen started the bonfire a day early. Luckily they were able to gather enough wood for the scheduled bonfire to be successful.

The officers for 1983-84 were: Jason Parker, President; Julie Williams, Vice President; Shauna Walker, Secretary; and Mindy Montgomery, Representative.

The officers had a positive attitude about the class of "87". Julie Williams put it bluntly when she said, "I think we are the best class."

Knowledge

New Administration begins at B.E.

Every year some changes are made at Box Elder, but this year brought about a distinct change in administration.

Dr. Jay Stuart, as Principal, has taken BE by the reins and held on tight. Right now he is just trying to become acquainted with the students and the school. "Our major goal is to make Box Elder a strong academic school so the students will leave feeling prepared," said Dr. Stuart.

One of the hardest parts about being new to the school is earning the respect of the students and faculty. "You can demand respect, but respect is earned," said Dr. Stuart. He accomplished this in a very short time. Said Mr. Cefalo, "I have great respect and admiration for him. I think he is doing a great job." Mr. Reed Olson stated, "I have always liked Mr. Stuart, even when he was in my class."

Mr. Jerry Wilde moved from Perry Elementary to BE and assumed the role of Vice-Principal. The move, he said, wasn't much of a change. "The same problems still exist and the excuses here aren't much different than the ones I've seen at Perry," Mr. Wilde said. Seriously though, he feels the biggest majority are just great kids and he "thoroughly enjoys working with the students."

Even though they have been here for a short time, Dr. Stuart and Mr. Wilde have proved themselves capable of running the school efficiently, and many changes have already become apparent. Only the future can tell what other changes are in store for Box Elder.

Faculty Cares

Looking back at the 1983-84 school year, the people who had the most impact on the student's lives would have to be the teachers.

The faculty at Box Elder were different from each other, but it was this unique difference that made such excellent teachers.

Alumni will remember them for more than their lectures and homework assignments. They will remember teachers who were concerned about what students learned and teachers who just cared in general.

Box Elder's teachers did more than just teach. Some served as class parents, some put up with the demanding role of being a department head, and many served as club advisors and athletic coaches.

Besides teachers, many other helpful souls roamed the halls of BE from custodians to librarians and cooks. Box Elder was a more pleasant place to be.

Looking back it can be questioned why these faculty members put up with it all. Perhaps, it was a character flaw of concern and good will.

"I feel good, oh! I feel so good!"

Up to Par

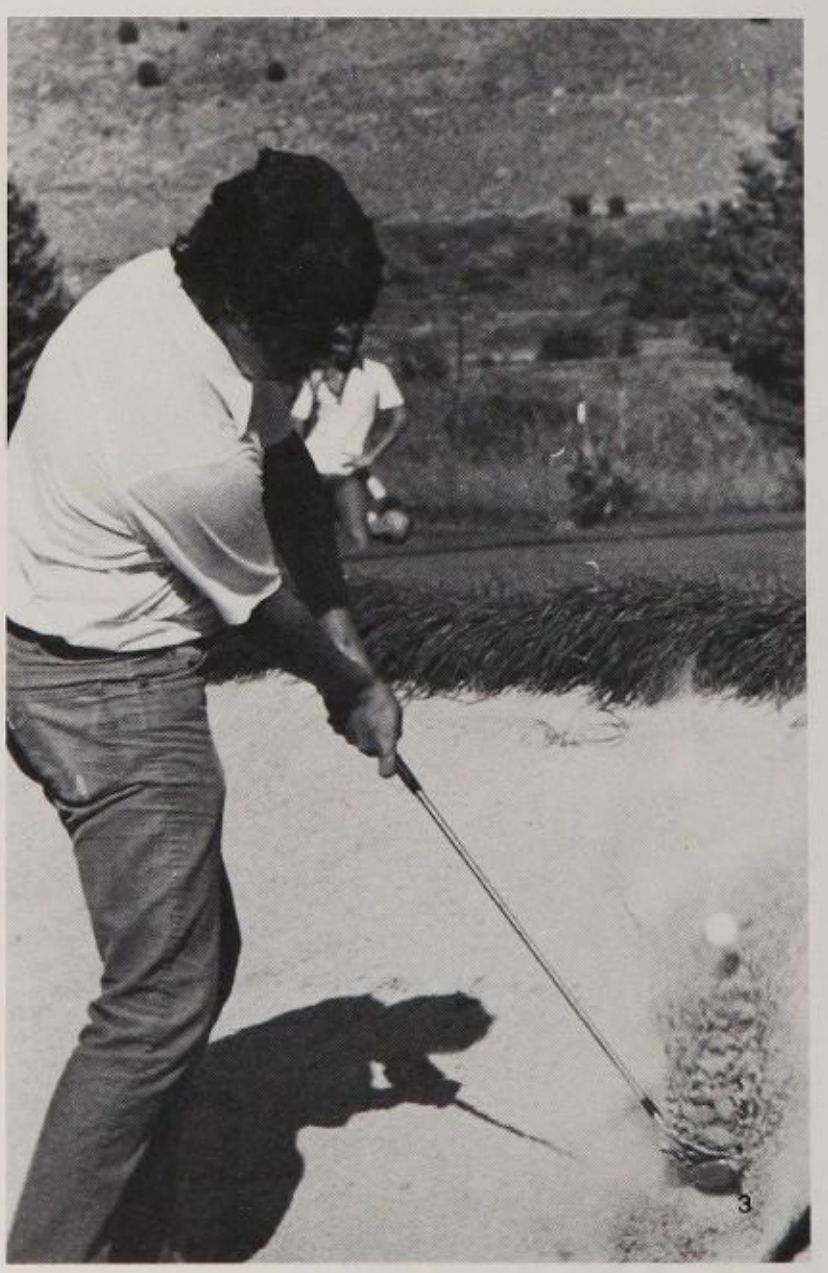
"They all work hard and want to play and learn." commented Coach Hone when asked about this year's golf team. This years graduating seniors have not lost in 31 straight duel matches.

The loss of the seniors will take two of the top three players off the team. The players they will lose are Darrin Wight who was the number one player, and number three player Jeff Lund.

This year's team won region with a 10-0 record. They went to the State Championships and lost the 4-A Championship to a tough Bingham team.

During the year they also played against 10 other northern Utah teams in a tournament held at Wolf Creek. Box Elder won this tournament with Darrin Wight taking medalist honors. There was a total of sixteen players on the team, in which the best eight would compete in duel meets.

There were only five who compered at state.



1. Coach Hone, Darin Wight, Vince Nickerson, John Ward, Robbie Bingham, Paul Clark, Randy Hadfield, Jeff Shaw, Jeff Lund, Glenn White, Judd Nelson.

Running Brave

You needed something more than a pair of legs for Cross Country. You needed stamina, determination, and in the words of Coach Jim Fuller "A desire to make sacrifices for the team, as well as yourself".

But don't forget the miles! Lots of them. On the average, 40 miles a week for the girls, and 50-60 miles a week for the boys, and in time you could call yourself a "Box Elder Harrier"

This years girls' team made it's mark on the Thinclad History at Box Elder, by making State Competition, the first in the girls Cross Country program.

This years boys Cross Country team didn't do as well as last years, after losing powerhouse Aslem Chavez, but did have a respectable showing at 3rd in the region.

Most valuable players were Paul Day, and Frosh, Treacie Hodson.

Summing up the feelings for the whole Cross Country team Keri Walker said "Cross Country is a lot of hard work, but in the long run it's really worth it.

Team succeeds

"I knew of their physical abilities, but I under estimated their character" commented Coach Mike Madeo about this years football team. The team only lost two ball games, one of which was lost to rival Bear River. The team took region along with Roy, who had an identical record.

The team had a perfect region record, except for the overtime loss to Clearfield. Because of this loss, it meant the Bees had to win their last game against Bonneville. The win held their number one ranking in Region One.

The team, with a great year behind them, advanced to the State playoffs, where they defeated Cottonwood High. In the State quarter finals, the team lost to a tough Alta team, who, in the end won the State 4-A championship.

Overall, the coaches felt the team did a very good job when it was needed. "They came up with the big plays when they were needed" commented the coaches when asked about the teams performance.

Netters excell

Even though the late summer heat was incredibly hot, the 15 girls of the tennis team worked diligently every day after school. Improving their tennis skills and becoming better players was their goal.

"It's too bad that there weren't 15 spots on the varsity team, because all the girls were qualified to play varsity," commented Coach Colleen Gordin.

All the team members were outstanding in their own area but chosen as most valuable player was senior, Darlene Boisjoly. "I was really excited to be voted as the most valuable player," said Darlene. "It was my dream to be MVP, and it feels really good to know my team members value me."

Senior, Debbie Hunter summed up the feelings of most of the team members when she said, "In tennis, what you put into it is what you get out of it. So when you excell in someway, it really gives you a sense of accomplishment and makes you feel good inside."

Bad Weather Delays Season

"Bonneville they say will be the toughest team in the region, but I feel we can be right up there at the top," commented Coach Goldsberry prior to the season opener.

The tennis team consisted of 12 players, eight of whom were seniors, three sophomores, and one junior. The team, which suffered two losses in the varsity top seven, still had four returning lettermen.

"I think we have a great chance to do well in the new region," commented one of the players when asked about the team's chances.

The team finished first in region last year and were the third best team in 3-A State play.

Volleyball team takes 2nd

Though many people consider volleyball to be an easy sport, this conception is incorrect. Ask any member of the Box Elder Volleyball Team and she will tell you it took many long hours of practice and tons of energy to play.

But these hours paid off for the Queen Bees. The varsity team represented Region One at the state tournament and represented it well. They defeated every team they were matched against until they reached the finals. In a very tough game, with Weber High School as their opponents, the Bees took second place in the tourney.

At a pep assembly held in their honor upon the completion of the tournament, the two co-caprains, Stacey Wheeler and Shauna Jeppson, addressed the studentbody.

The varsity team with Miss Emily Call as coach consisted of fifteen girls. Coach Richard Wight supervised the members of the JayVee team and Paulette Rackham instructed the Frosh gals.

TRADITION CONTINUES . . .

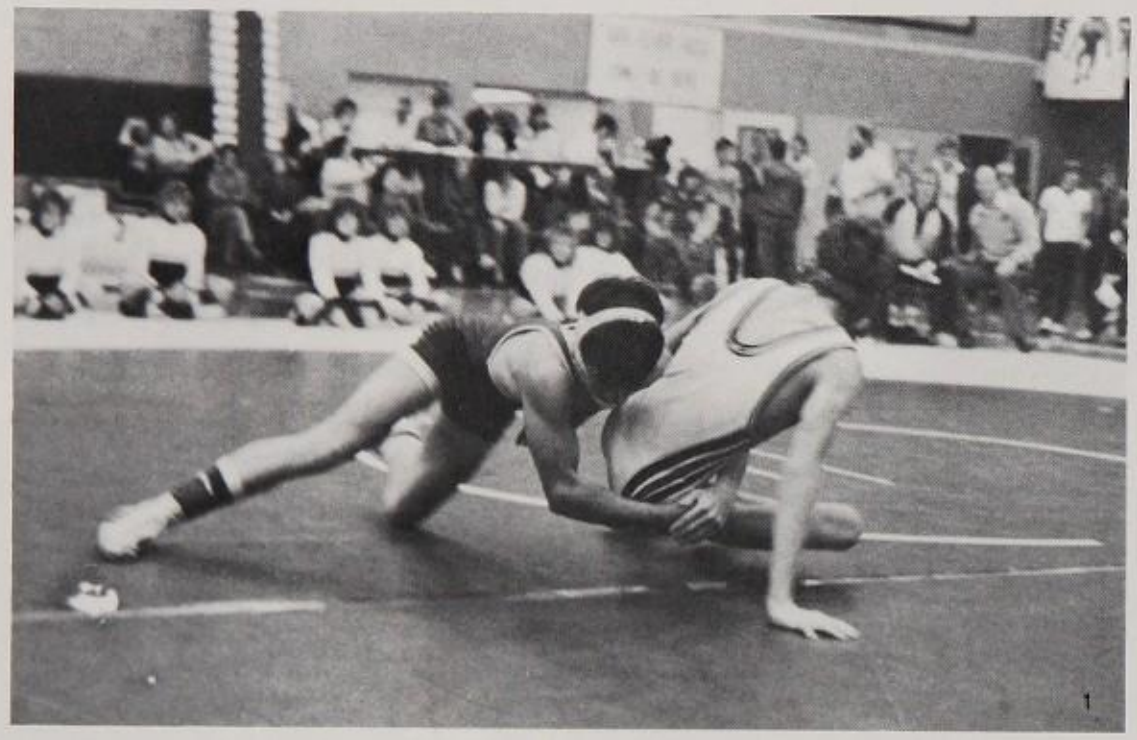
A new era of wrestling took shape, as the Box Elder wrestlers learned a few new tricks, and got a new coach, Joe Sindelar.

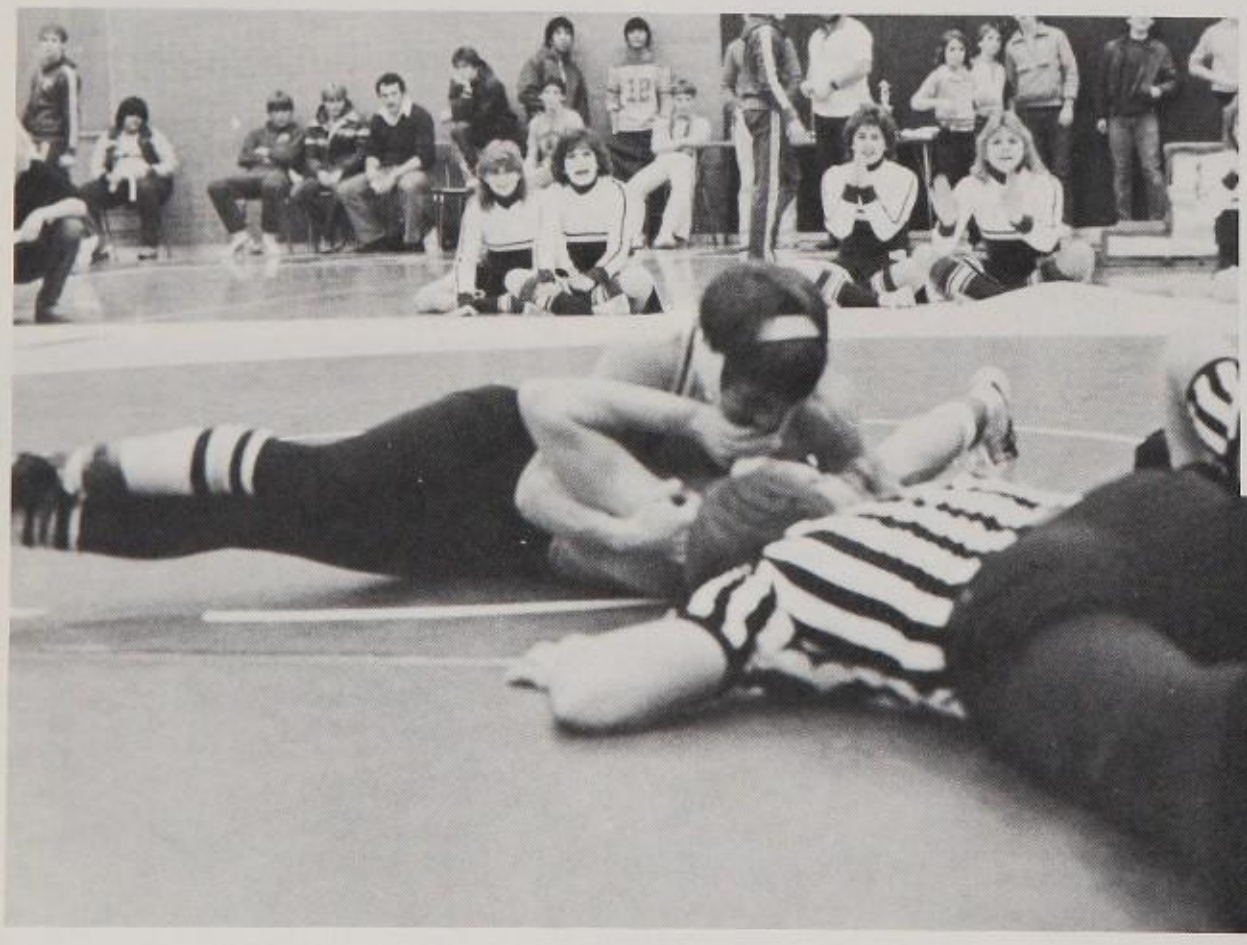
The Bees took home the Region trophy as they met all comers head on, and ground them into hamburger. They outdestined their nearest rival, Clearfield by a massive gap of 39.5 points, which is almost unheard of in Rigion meets. Brad Williams was an individual champion.

The Bees also qualified 11 of the 12 man squad for the statem championship held February 9-11.

"I was really proud of them" said coach Joe Sindelar. He had a right to be too. The Bees took home the 2nd place trophy as State, just barely missing out on first place.

"I think one of the reasons why we've got such a good team is that Box Elder has got tradition. The fathers and brothers of the wrestlers now were state champs and such. Tradition is a pretty big thing at Box Elder" says Assistant Coach David Yates.





1. Wanting a point, Kelly Norman puts weight into it.
2. The referees await to see Clay Carter pin his opponet.
3. A pin for sure, as everyone can see that Brad Williams has just helped us win at the Richardson Memorial.
4. To get out of a hold, Kelly Norman does his best.
5. J.V., freshmen wrestlers cap successful year

Combining the enthusiasm of freshman, the perserverance of sophmores, the dedication of juniors, and the experience of seniors, the Box Elder High Junior Varsity wrestling team finished of with a very successful record of 5 wins and 1 loss.

As in varsity wrestling, tradition has a lot to do with the Jay Vee program. A lot of the Jay Vee wrestlers have or have had alder brothers on Box Elders consistent Region Champion teams. That gives them an extra incentive to strive for the hallowed distinction of "Varsity."

"We had a great team this year!" said head coach Dave Yares. "We knew what we were doing. Our toughest match was at Pleasant Grove, but we got our stuff together, and we pulled it off."

"I love it" said junior Dow Wiscombe. "J.V. wrestling really gives me the experience for varsity. I really like wrestling," he continued.

The J.V. wrestlers didn't have a state or region, so there are no rankings, but next year, region 1 better watch out for the mighty Bees.

Cagers place

Box Elder capped off a successful basket-ball season by finishing seventh in the 4-A tournament held in late February in Salt Lake. The Bees, the fourth place team in Region One, surprised everyone with the placing.

Along the way the Bees pulled the biggest upset of the year when the defeated the state's number one team, Olympus, by five points. Coach Dennis Cusick said he felt the team represented Box Elder very well, and paid a special compliment to the cheerleaders, Rockettes, and pep club.

"Those ladies had a lot to do with out success this year," the coach said.

He also indicated the team had lots of fun playing this year, along with posting a winning record when most observers figured the Bees wouldn't do well in basketball.

Box Elder started off with an 11-1 record, including its first ever victory in the early December Box Elder Classic. In that tournament the Bees defeated Bonneville, the team which was the eventual Region One champion.

Even a rocky region record, however, didn't stop the Bees from finishing high in the state finals.

Underclass season successful

After a great freshmen year with a record of 18-2, the sophomore team came back with another great season. This years sophomore team come away with another brillant 17-2 record, suffering only two losses to region rivals Clearfield and Bonneville.

Their region record was 8-2 which gave them the number one region ranking. The team picked Jeff Shaw as the Most Valuable player for a great all around effort.

"After a very slow start I felt good about the progress of the team," commented coach Madeo when asked about this years freshmen basketball team. Their slow start consisted of a 2-5 record in their first seven games. Their final record from that point on was 11-5 which left them with a 13-10 record for the year. "They did a great job I felt," added Madeo, "for a team that has never played organized ball they did a very good job!"

Team successful

Trying to choose between fifty anxious girls for the girls varsity basketball team wasn't an easy thing to do. But fifteen lucky and very talented girls were chosen to play on the 1983-84 team. Coach Wight was very proud of "his girls". Shauna Jeppson was the leading scorer but it took everybody support and a great team effort to win each game. Although each member didn't play every single game, the players were very close. The team members outlined the highlight of the year as "being in the Utah State Tournament."

"I'm so grateful for the chance I had to play on the basketball team this year with the coaches and all the players. I really learned a lot." stated Martha Ogles. Tammy Volwiler added, "We have grown very close and now do almost everything together. We always have a blast."

Although the girls don't get as much support from the studentbody as the boys, they had the support of their parents and close friends. Members commented, "Our family helps us out a lot and gives us a lot of support. Our coach does too."

Both BE Boys and Girls Swim to Success

One of the major strengths of the 1983-84 swimming team was that they were so great in number. They had so many talented students on the team that they could not help but win. Because of their size, both the boy's and girl's swimming teams were strong in every main stroke.

Members of the team began their day swimming from 7 a.m. through first hour. Then they also came back and swam from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. "Being on the team takes alot of early hours and hard work, but when we win, it is worth it," commented Darin White.

During the season, Mary Honeck and Kay Bradford served as co-captains of the girl's team; boy's co-captains were Greg Weight and Boyd Welch; Daron Nelson was the diving leader. Coaches Karen Whitaker and Craig Robinette led both teams.

The BE Swim Team did very well in state competition. The girls took 9th, and the boys finished 10th. Daron Nelson won 3rd place in diving, Oliver von Rorz won two 4th places, and Becci Carr achieved 5th in the backstroke.

You and your individual lane

It's just you in your own individual lane. You don't have to depend on anyone. Except yourself. If you win, the glory is all yours, but, if you lose, there's no one to heap the blame on.

The hot sun bears down on your back. Your lungs are straining, but you see the finish line in the distance. You push yourself. The staccato rhythm of your feet crashing to the pavement with 500 pounds of force picks up.

You try to glance behind you, but you don't dare. It could slow you down. All you know is that nobody is in front of you.

Your labored breathing reaches a peak. Your legs feel like they're starting to cave in. The tape breaks under your heaving chest. You stagger a few more yards. The crowd is cheering wildly, but it's all a blur. You fall into the waiting arms of your coach. "You've done a great job!" he says. You don't hear him though. You know you've done the job, and you've proved to yourself, and everyone else that you could do it alone.

Crossing over that first hurdle

The hurdles loom large and ominous. You try to unlimber your arms, but you're too tense. You glance nervously, trying to size up your opponents. You mentally evaluate them, and then choose the one that seems the most threatening.

The starter calls you to the blocks. The chatter seems to fade away, and you concentrate on the barriers, mentally going through your technique that has been perfected in hours of practice.

Your muscles tense, and you get set. The starter fires the gun, and an immense surge of electricity goes through your body, sending you off, in what seems a blur.

The first hurdle looms ahead. You concentrate on that hurdle. Right now, that hurdle is the most important thing in your life. Your legs lift, you start to take flight.

You're over it. The rest comes in a succession of blurring images. You don't have to think about them. It comes naturally. It becomes almost mechanical.

You cross the last hurdle, and you let go the reserve of energy you've been holding back. You crash through the tape. You've won.

Baseballers compete in new region and succeed

With two important players injured before season play and with only one varsity experienced pitcher returning, many thought that this years' baseball team didn't have a chance. But they proved everyone wrong and even surprised themselves.

A late winter snow covered the baseball diamond which didn't help matters out. So during the time they should have been practicing, they were spreading graphite on the snow to melt it. Besides the snow to contend with, they had to practice in the gym. "You can't get much practice inside but we have a promising team. We've had to train some new pitchers but we have a chance of having a very good team," stated Coach Anderson.

Brad Williams was the only returning pitcher for the team so he had a heavy load on his shoulders. And at this first pre-season game against Ben Lomond they pulled ahead with a 9-1 victory. Then at a special pre-season game against Uintah, they won again.

There weren't as many seniors as last year but the team was still top rate. But many of the other Utah schools had the same problems as Box Elder. Practicing had to be done inside because of the weather so it evened things out a bit.

Although all odds were against them, one wouldn't think winning could be carried out. But the Bee's did it and they did it with their usual style.

School begins

Sounds of deafening New Wave music filled the gym on the first Friday of the new school year. This was the Hello Stomp and Hello Week had begun.

The purpose of Hello Week was to get students involved and excited about the new year.

During the week, a new student social was held for new students to get to know each other. A Mr. Cool Contest was held where Oliver Von Rorz was voted the coolest guy at B.E. And a B.E. night at the Hydrotube drew an ominous crowd of approximately 30 people. Mr. Kirk Allen, who attended, commented, "It's obvious that Box Elder students don't know how to have a party, they really missed out."

The week climaxed with an assembly in which Student Government turned Japanese and viewed the zany customs of American High School students.

Hello Week served its purpose and got the year off to a dynamic start.

1. Members of dance club perform at the Hello Assembly.
2. Members of Student Government hover at the feet of Junior Class Pres. Todd Watson in the Hello Assembly.
3. Messing around at the dance, Tracy Yagi turns Kelly Wendel into a rabbit.

5. Discussing the American cultures with his Japanese students is honorable Todd Watson.
6. Looking content and obviously having a good time, Richard Andrus and Janiece Tingey enjoy the stomp.
7. Amusement shows on the faces of the studentbody at the assembly put on for Hello Week.
8. Shoes crowd the hall as their occupants are dancing.
9. 10,11. Most of the clubs participated in the assembly, including Rally Squad, Colorguard and Cheerleaders.

Clubs involved

One image that will always remain in student's minds after leaving Box Elder High School and Brigham City, is of the annual Peach Days Celebration. It is just a part of growing up.

1983 Peach Days proved to be one of the best ever. School spirit was at a high with nearly every club having a float or an entry in the Saturday morning parade. Other students and BE alumni participated in the Peach Queen Pageant. Crowned to reign over the 79th anniversary celebration was queen Dodie Holmgren, 1st attendant Tara Jo Mitchell, and Julie Tolman as 2nd attendant.

For most residents of Brigham, Peach Days is a time for family to come home and for some good ole' fun. "I think Peach Days is an important part of Brigham City, and I really look forward to all the fun activities that take place during this weekend," commented Alan Kallmeyer, a Sophomore at Box Elder.

1. Showing great skill, Lee Lott leads the trumpet section.
2. Letting his suave personality shine, Todd Watson lets himself be towed through the parade.
3. With bright smiles the Rockettes move down the parade route.

Homecoming very successful

"Bees will conquer, hello." When the studentbody officers called the students, they were listening to hear this phrase. If they heard it, the student's class received points for class competition. Other competitions included a doughnut roll, a crutch race and a road rally, plus the traditional activities of painting the town, the Freshman bonfire and dressing up to a theme each day were all used to promote school spirit.

Another big activity was the Powder Puff game where the Senior girls played against the Juniors girls. The game was close but the mighty Juniors won 12 to 6. One Junior player, Kathy Rex, commented, "It was fun to play because now I know how the football players feel before a game.

The main event of Homecoming was the Varsity football game, during which the royalty was announced. The King turned out to be Oliver Von Rorz and Dominque Dierz was Queen. Junior King was Scott Lloyd with Lori Anderson as his Queen. Sophomore King and Queen were Paul Price and Joni Swenson. Freshman King was Shawn Nielsen with Jeri Jeppesen as Queen.

Playing against Weber, the team played a very exciting game. After being close throughout the whole game, Bees finally pulled ahead and won 3 to 7.

History repeats

The tradition continues. Ever since Box Elder High has been Box Elder High, there's been a Harvest Ball

Traditionally the Harvesr Ball has been held a week before Thanksgiving, Box Elders way of celebrating the final reaping of the abundant crops that Box Elder County farmers raise. Thus the Harvest Ball, Box Elder style, was born.

This years Harvest Ball followed in the tradition of it's predescssors. Along with the cornstalks and haybales that were strewed around the big gym to give it that "western" look, there was the traditional swing that many couples tried, and a few fell off.

"We really put a lot of hard work into the dance." said dance chairperson Helen Tashiro. "I really think people liked it" she continued.

Although, over the years the Harvesr Ball has lessened in importance, it's still a continueing tradition that the students of Box Elder will enjoy now, and in the future.

1. Singing "Lady down on Love" for 1983 Harvest Ball Theme is David Thorson, Charlene Hone, and Coleen Andersen.
2. While Andrea Kinmont and Adrian Perry take advantage of the swing, many others wait in line.
3. Giving his all, David Thorson sings a terrific solo at Harvest Ball.

Christmas dance is called successful

"Box Elder High School does not have any Christmas spirit. I must go help them!" Santa (Scott Nelson) told Mrs. Claus (Kirk Allen) as he set out to help BE. Several students were spotlighted through the showing of their baby pictures, and many school clubs performed on the 1983 Christmas Assembly. Richard Andrus, clad in a tux and bow tie, sang the theme song, "The Smile Has Left Your Eyes" by Asia.

Chosen as Snow Royalty were Dana Parker as Queen and Matt Harris as king, with Chrissy Rush and Zac Beecher, as first attendants and second attendants Ann Johnson and Matt Huff.

Who would you like to find in your stocking on Christmas morning? The studentbody of Box Elder decided that it would be Dominque Dietz and Lance Siddoway. As Stocking Girl and Boy they were honored during the assembly.

That evening, the annual Christmas Dance was held. Though few people attended, the dance was enjoyed by those who were there.

"Christmas is a special time of year, and the assembly and dance helped me get in the proper 'spirit' for the season," commented a sophomore.

1. 1982 Christmas Royaltys were, first runner up Matt Huff and Ann Johnson, Snow King and Queen Matt Harris and Dana Parker, second runners-up Krissy Rush and Zac Beecher.

2. Most students thought the dance was great, complimenting the sophomore class that had planned the whole thing.

3. Making everyone cry at the christmas dance, Richard Andrus sings and plays "The Smile Has Left Your Eyes", for the 1983 Christmas Theme."

Cupid's arrow strikes again

Box Elder guys had the opportunity to take their favorite sweetheart out to dinner and dancing at the annual Sweethearts Ball held on February 17. The Sweethearts Ball is eagerly looked forward to because of its theme and also because it breaks the monotony of a long winter. The dance was well attended and was considered to be one of the best dances all year.

Nearly a dozen students spent several hours after school transforming the small gym into a miniature castle, and the result was effective- the couples spent a romantic evening dancing under a canopy of stringed lights intermingled with red and white balloons. Afterwards, one senior girl commented, "The decorations were original and nicely done. It was the best dance I've been to in a long time."

Preference: Box Elder's Version of Women's Lib

Guys got a little taste of "sweating it out" again as the annual Preference dance was held January 6th.

"I was really nervous" commented one Junior boy. "At first it felt a little wierd having the girl open doors for you, and paying for dinner, but I could get used to that part really easy," he continued."

Girls usually showed a little more inventiveness in asking their dates out. From the time tried method of using the head-on attack to being a little more original. Some sent messages in cakes, where the potential victim would eat it all, and not hopefully the note, to having counselors or administrators call the subject and threaten him with expulsion unless he consented to go "out" with the girl.

"It was fun!" stated Angie Long. "I think girls ought to have more chances to ask guys out, kind of like women's equality at Box Elder High."

Pep Improved

Pep Assemblies, a regular feature for a Box Elder student during the 1983-84 school year, were to motivate the teams to do better the following night.

Principal Jay Stuart said that he enjoys Pep Assemblies but he sees room for improvement. "I am convinced that we have a great student-body, but we could cheer a little harder for the team."

Steve Allred, one of the varsity basketball players, commented, "Pep Assemblies are great! It's nice to know that the students are behind us."

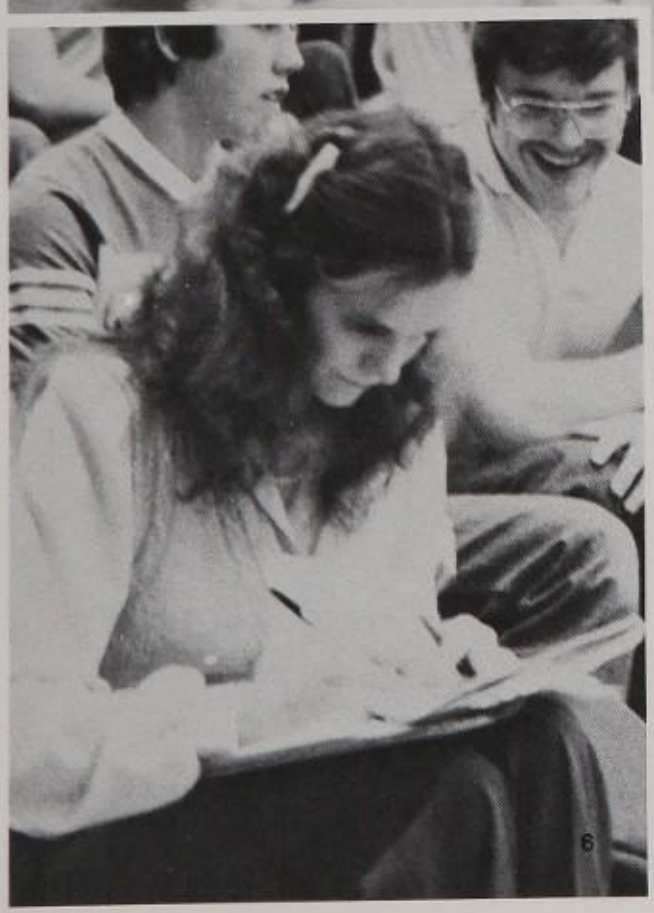
A student that really enjoyed Pep Assemblies was Jamie Vogt; he liked Pep Assemblies because he got out of school early!

Brett Adams, captain of the basketball team, thought Pep Assemblies helped the team perform better.

Coach Dennis Cusick said, "Before I die I would like to see the gym filled like it was before," and felt that if the Pep Assemblies were well organized, and if the Pep Band played, it would bring more student's support.

Dave Gardner and Corey Salmon commented, "We really love the Cheerleader's moves and cheers!"

1. Contemplating on her next move, Ressa Leishman turns away from the crowd and bites her tongue.
2. In one of many Pep Assemblies, the basketball team was honored for their great work and efforts.
3. Too fast for the naked eye to see, a few "Beloved" teachers prove that speed has nothing to do with age.
4. After a valiant battle, a few solumn pall bearers take away the remains of the Weber Warrior's Mascot as the many supporting clubs of B.E. gather around.
5. Bringing out his best, Coach Madeo smiles proudly.
6. Not taking too much interest in the Pep Assembly, Mrs. Gordon continues on with her history assignment.
7. Getting all riled up, the crowd prepares themselves for the big Friday night basketball game.



N.Y. recreated

The Box Elder High School drama department had yet another triumph in it's production of that contemporary love story - West Side Story. The drama department chose to perform West Side Story due to it's message and the challenge it gave to the cast and crew.

Under the direction of Mr. Joe Barzel and music director, Mr. Jeff Colletti, the cast made up of over 40 members began practicing in early January. They practiced six days a week, three hours a day, totaling over 200 hours of hard work until the play was opened on March 1.

According to Mr. Barzel the best aspect of the play was the fact that the cast was very cooperative to work with. When the production was all over it was viewed as a success as a high school production, they had met the challenge of the play and won.

Now, forever

Shades of blue and white transformed the usually bland interior of the gym into a spring wonderland for the 1983 Junior Prom.

Students clad in formal attire danced slowly to the tones of the band "Christopher," while others enjoyed delicious refreshments.

At 10:30 p.m. the awaited moment came. The balcony was literally packed with admiring parents and friends, while juniors nervously shook in the small gym. This was it-the Promenade.

Couple by couple, they came, forming an '84' around the gazebo. The theme song, "Now and Forever" was sung by Janiece Tingey, Angie Sheridan, Tyler Dunn, and Richard Andrus. The band consisted of Steve Christensen, Richard Andrus, Lee Lott, Suzanne Harvey, and Jeff Rassmussen.

When asked how she felt about the prom, Kelly Goss simply exclaimed, "It was excellent!"

"If one measured proms by beauty, by outstanding decorations, by beautiful people, by lasting memories, and by an outstanding theme, then the prom of the Class of 84 stands head and shoulders above the rest." commented class dad Mr. Kirk Allen.

When all was said and done, it was hoped the memories of the Junior Prom, of the Class of 1984, would last not only for now, but forever.

Hard workers are successful

400 enthusiastic juniors invaded a bare gym on a Wednesday in April, and emerged on Friday having achieved a small miracle.

The Prom decorating crew was headed by a committee made up of MaryAnn Jackman, Shelly Stuart, and Julie Halling. Armed with only paintbrushes, clever ideas, and yards & yards of blue and white material, an enchanting atmosphere was created.

Also during prom week, the traditional assembly was held. For the first time in years the assembly wasn't based on the dramatic search for a date. This assembly was simply called "The Generic Assembly" filled with bright lights, alot of thrills, all in a brown paper bag.

Featured in the assembly were the mockettes, a precision tricycle act, and various other entertaining comedies.

"The Prom Assembly was the best ever done," said Danny Canfield. "But then isn't everything the class of 84 does the best ever?"

Soccer kicks

Twentyone players represented Box Elder as the team swung into the second varsity season. New Head Coach Kirk Allen said the team was led by Crae Berrett and Scott Lloyd, and singled out those two and Toan Phung and Troy Tuft as the outstanding players on the team.

The major obstacle to the soccer team this year proved to be the weather, with a March 14 starting date postponed several times because of the snow still on the ground.

The team began practicing in mid-February in the natatorium, and set as a goal a finish in the top three teams in Region One. Coach Allen said the players would combine a good defense with a real aggressive defense.

One player commented, "Soccer is the world's most popular sport, and we want to become that popular at Box Elder."

1. Scott Lloyd and Robbie Carver discuss techniques of dribbling the ball.
2. This year's soccer team consisted of: Allan Kalmeyer, Scott Lloyd, Chris Agnello, Rubin Martinez, Eric Ramos, Crae Berrett, John Dickey, Troy Tuft, Robbie Carver, Toan Phung and Coach Kirk Allen.

Symphony adds touch of class.

Box Elder got a taste of culture this year when the famed Utah Symphony performed for the studentbody. In an energetic and entertaining demonstration led by Associate Conductor Charles Kerchum, the musicians captivated the audience with several renowned compositions.

Ranked one of the top ten in the nation, the Utah Symphony is received around the Rocky Mountain West with the appreciation it justly deserves. It was a rare luxury to have the symphony play at Box Elder for the students and a few members of the community who could fit into the remaining seats. Unfortunately, when the symphony attempted to perform for the studentbody a few years ago, they were not well received and refused to come back for three years. This year the students had apparantly grown up and the orchestra faced a more receptive audience.

The students surprised themselves when they realized that they really enjoyed the music, and they expressed their appreciation at the end of the concert with a standing ovation. Commented one senior at the close of the concert, "I was surprised that I actually enjoyed it."

1- After tuning and preparing their instruments the musicians moved into an excellent performance that the audience greatly appreciated.
2- Led by conductor Charles Kerchum, the musicians flowed through the music with the ease and expertise of professionalism.
3- As the orchestra performed the various selections, one of the symphony's violists explained the history of each one.
4- When Van Halen says "Jump", Larry Edwards and Todd Watson put forth their greatest efforts to follow the instructions to a "T".
5- The varsity basketball team anxiously awaits the arrival of the fairer sex at the beginning of the Rock 103 stomp on February 3.
6- Some like fast dances, but slow are still most everyone's favorite.
7- It's called "Mass Confusion" after a sock hop trying to find your shoes.

Stomps useful

Stomps? What are they useful for? At first thought, nothing. On second thought, plenty. As stated by Joy Volwiler, "For those not able to date, stomps provide a chance to socialize with everyone." Besides socializing, people actually dance at stomps! Letting their innerselfs come forth, students created many exotic and wild dance moves. Stomps also provided a chance to listen to rock music as loud as they wanted without having parents complain about the "noise."

Woody retires

Thirty years of dedicated service ended this year when J. Woodfuff "Woody" Hansen retired from the head custodial duties of Box Elder High School.

Mr. Hansen started at Box Elder in 1954, and has since then done just about everything there is to do at Box Elder. From lock work, electrical work, to plumbing and fixing clocks, Mr. Hansen did it.

"He's a very caring person, sensitive to the needs of both teachers and students alike" commented Principal Jay Stewart. "He wasn't concerned with the time, either. If there was a job to be done, Woody didn't worry about the time it took to do it, regardless of the hours." continued Stewart.

Another remarkable thing about Mr. Hansen is that in all his thirty years at Box Elder, Mr. Hansen only missed 3 days, and that was because of blood poisoning. "I just hated missing school. I missed the kids so much, I just wanted to get better and get back to work." Mr. Hansen stated.

In his retirement, Mr. Hansen plans to do a few odd jobs, travel a little, and maybe build a cabin.

2. Joseph Barzel tries to express his feelings of appreciation for the dedication Woody Hansen has given to B.E.
3. Taking time out to recline in his office, Woody Hansen reminsces about his good times at B.E.

Washington at a Close-Up View

For a mere $715, one had the opportunity to take the trip of a lifetime. This trip involved flying to Washington D.C., Jamestown, and Williamsburg to study American Government and American History. The name of this was Closeup.

However, despite the value of this trip, only three girls from Box Elder recognized the opportunity. They were Karlene Cutler, Kari Jo Yagi, and Tina Parkinson. Mr. Reed Olsen and his wife served as chaperones for the trip.

The purpose of the closeup trip was to get first hand information on the workings of government. Students attended lectures by a guest speaker and then would tour the place talked about. After seeing places such as Congress, small discussion groups were formed to talk over American Problems.

"Talking over these things helped people see the problems of today and be able to connect them with local problems," commented Mr. Olsen.

Summing up the feelings of the three girls, Tina Parkinson concluded, "The Closeup program was well worth it. I loved it!"

Booming Metropolis

Famous American author Thomas Wolfe once said, "You can't go home again." Obviously he had never lived in peaceful Brigham City and the surrounding area.

The city means many things to many people, but most of all it brings a stability to students lives they wouldn't otherwise have. Even after going to college and moving away, the city remains and former inhabitants often return for visits and to renew old friendships.

During this year, as in others, the city changed. Fast food outlets continued to be built on the south side of the city, new clothing srores came into being, and another threat of closure hung over Intermountain Inter-Tribal school.

But mainly the city srayed as it has for many years. Those who do move away expect it to remain that way for those return visits. Those who remain, don't like to see drastic changes in the everyday lifestyle. Whatever the reasons, the community contributed much to the Box Elder High lifestyle.

the Future

Top Three Percent

Four years of academics in high school could be viewed as a marathon race, one not necessarily won by the fastest or strongest, but by the one with the most perseverance. Certainly this year's valedictorian, Holly Walker, and the members of the top three percent have endured to the very end.

Holly finished her high school career with a perfect 4.0 grade point average, evidence that she ran the race every year, and kept going right down to the last mile. Along with her academics, Holly also managed to be a successful member of the swimming team, and was a member of the National Honor Society.

The other members of the top three percent also completed the race successfully.

Janae Butler was active in FBLA, receiving the business department 'B' pin. She along with all other eight members, was a member of NHS.

Debbie Hunter was a member of German club, and Sheila Ishii was active in Rockettes, winning several individual honors for her marching and dancing.

Deann Johnson managed to find time to serve in student government, while Tina Jones participated in FBLA, along with helping put the Boomerang together.

Kathylyn Keller was a member of German club, while also being active in FHA. Lane McKinnon, the lone male in the group, was on the wrestling team.

Shelly Stuart was also in German club, and was named "Most Gracious Woman." Stacey Wheeler was in GAA and played on the basketball and volleyball team, and was also in Madrigals.

So academics, although very important to these students, were put into their perspectives. They led balanced lives, and their efforts for that balance, and for their perseverance, is recognized by the school on these pages.

Outstanding students receive recognition

Everyone was excited at years end to hear the winners of the school's big four awards the Tom Hardaway, Outstanding Girl, Outstanding Boy, and Gracious Womanhood. No one doubted the worthiness of Clay, Cindy, Tyler, and Shelley.

The cream of Box Elder's 1984 crop was recognized in late May during the annual award assembly.

Whether in athletic, academic, or vocational areas, these students had an opportunity to be recognized by their teachers, parents, and peers by walking across the auditorium stage.

Many areas are represented. Sports at B.E. are highly visible, and several athletic awards are noted here, many of which have given for years and years.

But on the pages can also be found some of the other winners of Box Elder. Students with talents in math and foreign languages are displayed. Those who excelled in business, or home economics, or music are shown here, along with outstanding writers and farmers.

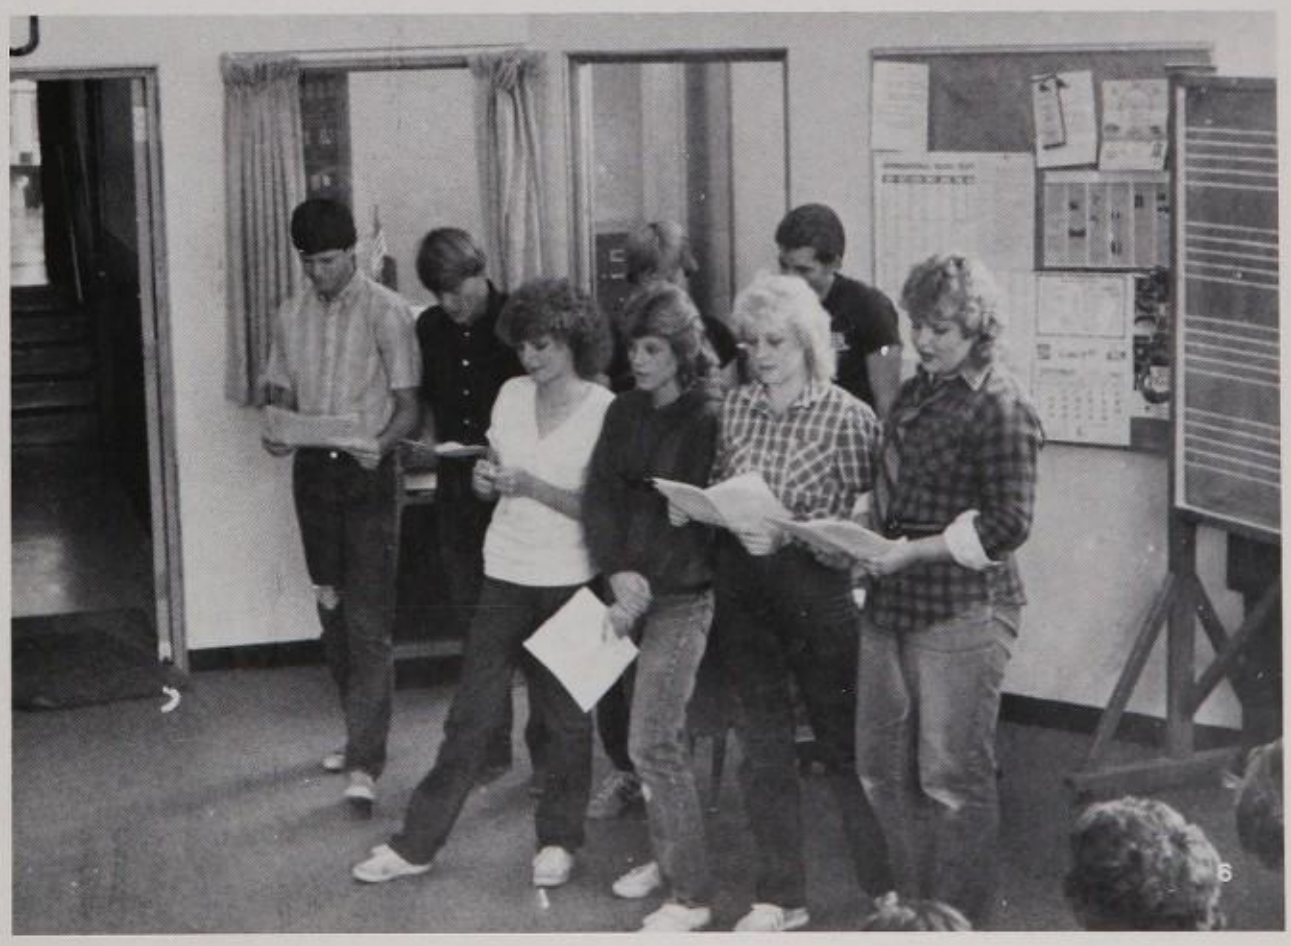
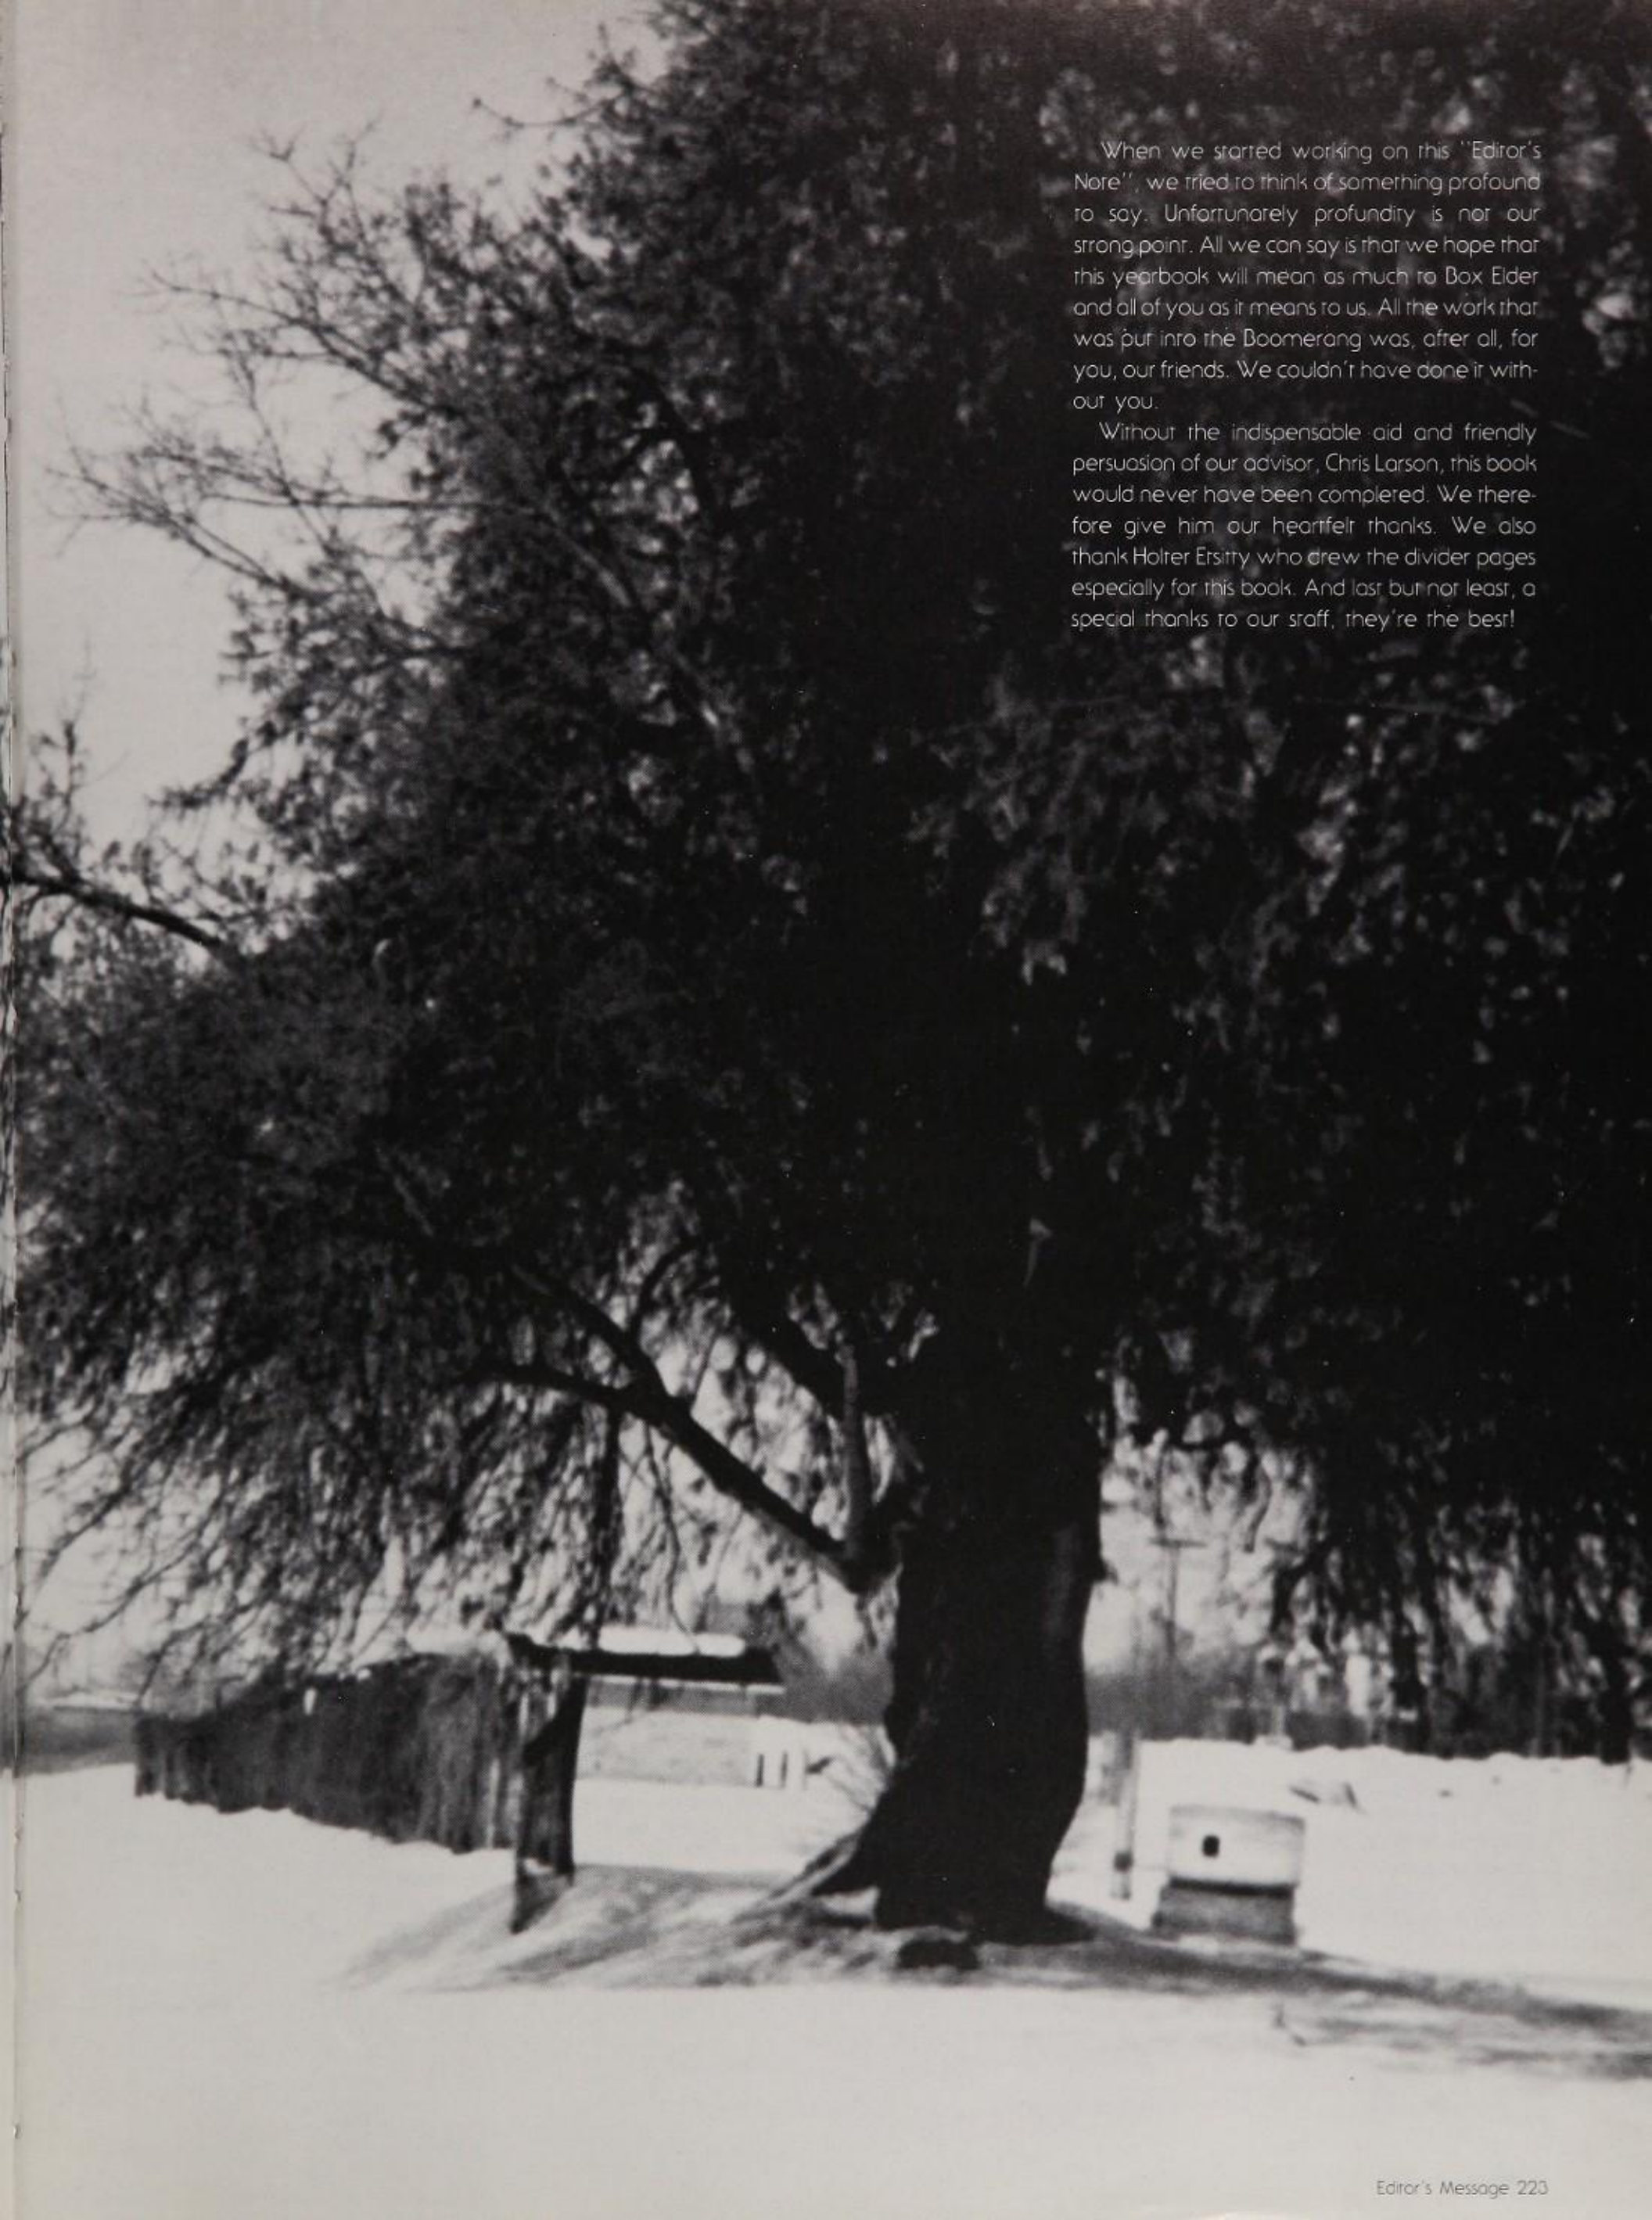
4. Always laughing and having fun, Carolyn Olsen and Allyson Reeves share a joke.
5. Trying to study the week before Christmas is difficult but with concentration it can be accomplished.
6. Singing is a great way to break up the monotony of a normal day at school.





When we started working on this "Editor's Note", we tried to think of something profound to say. Unfortunately profundity is not our strong point. All we can say is that we hope that this yearbook will mean as much to Box Elder and all of you as it means to us. All the work that was put into the Boomerang was, after all, for you, our friends. We couldn't have done it without you.

Without the indispensable aid and friendly persuasion of our advisor, Chris Larson, this book would never have been completed. We therefore give him our heartfelt thanks. We also thank Holter Ersity who drew the divider pages especially for this book. And last but not least, a special thanks to our staff, they're the best!
